Girls See 2 Rescued in Wellesley

Four hundred Wellesley College girls today witnessed and cheered the thrilling "human-chain" rescue of two men who fell through the ice while fishing on Lake Waban, adjoining the college campus.

Virtually dropping their food in dormintory dining rooms where they were having their lunch, most of the girls ran to the windows. Others hurried outside and watched the rescue from the shore.

The victims gave their names as Leo J. Sikaukis, 45, unemployed father of two children, of North Munroe terrace, Dorchester, and George C. Slukas, 48, a photographer, of West Broadway, South Boston.

Four employes of the college attached to the powerhouse, effected the rescue.

Their shouts for help attracted Frank Reiser, Jr., a welder, of Leach lane, South Natick. He ran to the powerhouse, about 200 yards away, and hastily summoned John Daly, 30, a plumber, of Cochituate; Gene Mazzoli, 28, a plumber, of Waverly street, Framingham, and William Brown, 29, also a plumber, and who is a call-fireman in Dover.

By this time word had reached the college dormitories and the shouts and cheers of the girls greeted the rescuers.

With two ladders the four men formed a human chain on the ice and pulled the men out.

As Slukas reached the ice Sikaukis, exhausted as he loosened his grip on the log, fell through. He was quickly pulled to safety, however.

More Praise Three-Cent American

Three more organizations, one a war veterans' post, today joined the many Greater Boston groups and individuals hailing the three-cent price of the Boston Evening American.

Commander Louis Altman and Adjutant Samuel Cooper of the Boston Newspaper-men's Post, 2158, Veterans of Foreign Wars, announced the post adopted a resolution endorsing the new price, because the increase protects hundreds of employes and upholds standards of "vital importance" to the community.

TEXT OF RESOLVE

The text of the resolution follows:

"Whereas: The cost of newspaper production has been increased to the highest point in history because of rising prices of newsprint and of higher wage scales, and,

"Whereas: The Boston American, impelled to take this action by a desire to avoid reducing its present roster of employes, has increased its price from two to three cents, and,

"Whereas: The Boston Newspapermen's Post of the Veterans

Wife Sobs as Badger Begs for Mercy; His Companion Absent

Despite his fervent plea for "a chance" while his wife sobbed nearby, Herbert L. Badger, Jr., 26, Sunday school superintendent and choirmaster, today was sentenced to three years in a penitentiary for violation of the Mann act.

Badger, father of two children was charged with transporting 14-year-old Elizabeth Bayley, a high school sophomore, to Florida for immoral purposes.

The jury returned a verdict of guilty before Judge George H. Sweeney in federal court after deliberating 50 minutes.

Judge Sweeney imposed sentence after Assistant U. S. Attorney George F. Garrity recommended five years, declaring that the defendant, if found guilty in a state court, could have been sentenced to life imprisonment for a similar statutory offense.

HELD SELF AS MODEL

"I know that if a fine were imposed," Garristy said, "it would have to be paid by those who cannot afford to pay it."

Girls See 4th Maniac Slaying in Asylum

By JAMES J. DELANEY

(Copyright 1938, by The Boston Evening American)

Murder's toll at Medfield State Hospital mounted to four today as probers dug into institution records and uncovered a new secret slaying there.

The fourth madhouse murder victim was Joseph Bardzik, 46, former New Bedford resident, according to Dr. Earl K. Holt, superintendent of the institution.

He was killed in a maniacal pick-axe attack by Samuel Lecolit, 43, formerly of Chelsea, on January 18, 1934.

This killing, as the other three, was revealed by State Auditor Thomas H. Buckley, whose disclosures have touched off an intensive probe into the institutions under the direction of the State Department of Mental Diseases.

The revelation of this new killing was the most sensational among the latest developments in the three-way probe into alleged conditions at the hospital.

Other revelations unmasked today were:

1—That two mildly insane patients ordered to enter a sewer and clean it out, would have been asphyxiated but for timely arrival of a hospital attache who risked his own life to drag them, unconscious, from their trap.

2—An 18-year-old attendant was in charge of the ward where 56 patients were asleep the night Frank Loprete, Somerville axe slayer, went mad and killed two patients.

3—Charges by Representative Francis X. Coyne that there are three insane killers still at the hospital.

4—Relatives of inmates at the Medfield Hospital, fearing new outbreaks of violence there, stormed the State House offices of the Department of Mental Diseases to demand their kinsmen be transferred to other institutions.

5—The fast-breaking developments led to the calling of a special meeting of the institution's trustees this afternoon at the hospital. Notice of the meeting was sent by Dr. Holt to Dr. Clifton T. Perkins, acting head of the State mental disease department.

Shortly after news of the fourth slaying was made public Representative Roland D. Sawyer of Ware filed an order with the clerk of the House requesting Public Safety Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney to submit a transcript of his investigation

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 27 (INS)—Judge Charles H. Moorman, 61, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, died of pneumonia here Saturday and was removed to the hospital, where his illness was diagnosed as nervous exhaustion and a cerebral circulatory disturbance.

Judge Moorman was stricken while attempting to settle the incident locally with their apology.

The only version of the affair available was the one offered by Japanese officials.

NEWSPAPERS IN PROVIDENCE INCREASE PRICE TO 3 CENTS

PROVIDENCE, Jan. 27—The Providence Journal, a morning newspaper, and the Providence Bulletin, evening, announced today that the price of the newspapers would be increased from two to three cents, effective next Monday.

The new carrier rate for each newspaper will be 20 cents a week, home delivered.

In announcing the increased rate, these two Providence newspapers, both under the same general management, followed a country-wide trend and their price rise leaves but a handful of two-cent dailies in the nation.

Announcements of the price increases said:

"This advance has long been delayed, but constantly rising production costs and a heavy increase in the price of newsprint in 1938 have forced us to follow the course of other leading newspapers.

"In accordance with what we believe to be the wishes of our readers, we are making this increase to continue delivering to you the best newspaper that can be produced. The only other course would be to lower the quality of our product.

"In making the change, we are not unmindful of the increased costs of doing business which many of our distributors have had to bear since our present rates were established. Hence, all newsdealers, carrier boys and newsboys will share in the benefits of the increased price."

Sweeping Probe Of NLRB Urged

Sen. Burke Calls Board 'Curse to Labor and Biased in Favor of CIO'

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (INS)—Declaring the conduct of the national labor relations board has been a "curse to honest labor and a threat to well intentioned business," Senator Burke (D.) of Nebraska, today appealed to a Senate judiciary subcommittee for a sweeping investigation.

Burke read to the committee a lengthy statement outlining his charges that the board is biased in favor of the CIO, is creating dissension in industry, threatening the freedom of the press and defeating the objectives of the legislation which created it.

An immediate row broke out among the sub-committee members over whether the proposed investigation should be handled by the judiciary committee or the Senate labor committee, which authored the original labor relations act.

Senator Frederick (D.) of Illinois, accused Burke of "washing dirty linen in the Senate" to which the Nebraskan retorted that he could substantiate every one of these charges and would do so if the committee so acted upon favorably.

"There are a great many people throughout the country today who believe that the Wagner Labor Relations Act needs immediate and drastic revision," Burke told the subcommittee, headed by Senator Neely (D.) of West Virginia.

"They are equally convinced that the National Labor Relations board has been guilty of the most serious acts of omission and commission, that its conduct has been a curse to honest labor and a constant threat to well intentioned business.

SOUNDS WARNING

"They believe that no small part of the blame for the present appalling economic depression may properly be laid at the door of this administrative agency.

"Many prudent and patriotic business men are coming to feel that they cannot long continue to operate, if they must remain subject to what they consider to be the outrageous treatment inflicted upon them by this board and its horde of examiners, investigators and other representatives."

Burke warned of "serious consequences" unless the Labor Act is revised and the board changed in ways, adding:

"It is generally recognized that a faulty law, even a law that is fundamentally bad, may be so wisely administered by a temperate, impartial, well-balanced agency, that the results will not, in the long run, be very harmful. Contrarywise, a good law may be so unwisely administered as to produce only baleful effects.

"When the combination exists of a poorly drawn, one-sided, dangerous piece of legislation, and a thoroughly incompetent and grossly partial agency charged with its enforcement, you may well look for serious consequences."

ASKS $25,000 FOR PROBE

As Burke pressed for favorable action on his resolution which authorize $25,000 for the investigation, Neely announced he has summoned J. Warren Madden, chairman, and other members of the board to tell their side of the story. Other witnesses who will appear later are members of maritime unions and labors non-partisan league.

Neely said the members of the board will be given ample opportunity to answer Burke's charges which were:

"1—That organizers for certain labor organizations have been deputized as agents of the board, and supplied with credentials which they have used unfairly in the effort to obtain information in order to make out a case.

"2. That agents of the board attend certain types of union meetings and solicit the signing of affidavits for the purpose of obtaining material to institute complaints.

"3. That the board has appointed examiners known to be prejudiced in favor of one party . . .

RAPS EXCESSIVE EXPENSE

"4. That the board has appointed examiners for individual cases and upon a per diem basis, which has resulted in long-drawn out hearings and reports of the kind which the board favored.

"5. That the board expended government funds in the payment of witnesses and counsel on behalf of one labor organization, and requires other labor groups and employers to pay excessive expenses in defending complaints.

"6—That the board has refused to call elections on the petition of an independent union in the effort thereby to build up other unions of the kind the board favors.

"7—That the board furnishes as witnesses employes of its own, to be examined before its own employes as judge, the examination to be conducted by its own employes as prosecutor.

CALLS BOARD BIASED

"8—That in a very large number of cases the hearings before the board examiners are conducted in an unfair and biased manner. . . ."

Burke charged also that the board has subjected local public officials, members of civic organizations and other persons not directly concerned with the issues involved to "discourteous treatment and unjust abuse." He added that the board had been particularly objectionable in the following cases:

The Mansfield Mills, Lumberton, N. C.; Stackpole Carbon Co., St. Marys, Pa.; Weirton Steel Corp., Weirton, W. Va.; Electric Boat Co., Groton, Ct.; Republic Steel Corp., Massillon, Ohio and Phillips Packing Co., Cambridge, Md.

Seek Youth, Boss' Auto, Daughter

Tolland Swain Goes Famed Professor's Word One Better

TOLLAND, Jan. 27—Professor Robert E. Rogers, Boston Evening American columnist, once advised boys not to bother with the secretary but to "marry the boss' daughter."

A local namesake, John R. Rogers, discovered today that his employe went the professor one better.

The employe, Daniel Kelley, 21, not only made his home with the boss, but borrowed the latter's car to run away with Rogers' 17-year-old daughter, Gladys, police reported.

All the time Kelley lived at his house Rogers never suspected that the youth and Gladys were in love.

Today, however, he discovered a note from the girl saying she and the boy friend were going away and would return his car when they came back. A trip to the garage verified the fact the machine was missing.

Lodge Puts Onus On White House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Senator Lodge (R.) of Massachusetts, blamed administration leaders today for eliminating his amendment calling for prevailing rates of pay from the Wagner-Steagall housing bill.

He wrote the Carpenters' Union, Local 143, in Canton, O., that responsibility for removing the amendment in conference was the administration leaders.

"I believe they did so at the express request of the White House."

Replying to Samuel Fletcher, Sheet Metal Workers Union, Local 63, Springfield, Mass., Lodge wrote:

"I assure you I will fight to have the prevailing wage amendment restored although the administration opposes it."

Lodge's amendment would have required the payment of wages at a rate "not less than the prevailing rate of pay in the same locality."

Nobility Hears Sizzling Love

Britons Throng Court At M. P.'s Suit

LONDON, Jan. 27. (INS)—Passionate love letters and merciless cross-examining of the husband gave London nobility and society a field day in court today as Captain Alex Stafford Cunningham-Reid, Conservative member of Parliament, battled for half his estranged wife's fortune.

The sizzling letters were exchanged by the couple before love changed to hate.

Lady Cunningham-Reid, daughter of Lord Mount Temple and sister of Lady Louis Mountbatten, has a yearly income of $400,000.

The courtroom was packed with society who turned out early to hear Captain Cunningham-Reid defend his contention that any "settlement" should take the earning of her husband financially.

MOSCOW, Jan. 27 (INS)—Announcing that 15,000 new members have recently joined the Communist party in the United States, the semi-official newspaper Trud (Labor) today credited Communists and Communists working in the CIO for the past year's wave of labor unrest in American industry.

At the same time Trud, organ of the All-Union Central Council of Trade Unions, bitterly condemned the American Federation of Labor and "Trotskyites," while praising the Committee for Industrial Organization.

"The CIO, plus the organizing role of the Communist party, was successful in carrying out the wide striking movement," said Trud.

"The considerable membership of the CIO passed through a good school in their struggle against murderers of the steel automobile trusts and the A. F. of L. strike-breakers."

Sales Tax Would Double Burden, Says O'Connell

Declares Plan Has Never Yet Brought Relief to Property

The proposed Massachusetts two per cent sales tax would cost home owners (twice as much as they would receive through tax reductions.

This was the statement of P. A. O'Connell, president of the Boston Retail Trade Board, in an address to the Massachusetts Federation of Women's Clubs. Declaring the tax would impose more of a hardship on modest homes than on wealthy property owners, O'Connell said:

"Twenty-two other states in the Union have retail sales taxes. In every instance they were adopted with the specific promise that the load on real estate would be lightened. But in no instance is there evidence that such relief has actually been sustained.

"If this has been the experience elsewhere, what assurance have we that the new money collected from a sales tax in Massachusetts would continue to relieve our other taxes.

"Are we not likely to find that the insatiable demand for government spending will swallow up the additional $45,000,000 without appreciable relief to the owners of property?

"In Massachusetts we have approximately 570,000 families of five in rented homes, against less than 440,000 families who own their homes.

"The census figures show that the great majority of homes are valued in the neighborhood of $5000 each.

"But let us figure this on an individual basis—your own home, for example, which we will assume has an assessed valuation of $10,000.

"Put down on one side the amount which proponents of the sales tax promise will be taken from your real estate tax rates. Suppose the reduction in taxes in your town really should amount to $5 per thousand. That would mean a saving to you of $50 a year.

SAVE $50, LOSE $80

"Now then, on the other side, figure how much you spend for living in the course of a year. We'll say that your expenditures are about $5000 a year, and, if so, at least $4000 would be subject to sales tax, costing you $80 a year.

"You have saved $50 on your real estate tax, but the sales tax has taken much more from you—you're $30 in the hole on the transaction."

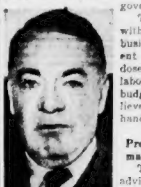
Gen. Johnson Says:

U. S. PROSPERITY

Deal Should Aid Business

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

CHICAGO, Jan. 27—His Excellency, the Hon. Joseph P. Kennedy, Ambassador Designate to the Court of St. James, is quoted in the press as taking business to task for not telling government how to end this depression.



HUGH S. JOHNSON

The Hon. played golf at Palm Beach with three "well-established" Chicago business men, and each one had a different medicine. One thought the proper dose was for business to crack down on labor. Another believed that a balanced budget would do the trick. A third believed in placing purchasing power in the hands of the public.

"I think," said His Excellency, "the President would like to have somebody make a suggestion to him."

This is the same Mr. Kennedy who advised business that the way out of the depression is to "stop bellyaching" and get busy.

One can hardly blame His Excellency for boasting for his boss—especially after just receiving from the President's hands the third of three great honors—chairman of the SEC, chairman of the Maritime Commission and now the highest ambassadorial post in the gift of the government.

In each of the first two jobs the Hon. Joseph shone. He started them off with a bang. He demonstrated great shrewdness in getting out while the getting was goodwhile the bang was still resounding and before the tough, long hard pull of actual accomplishment or heartbreaking failure began, and, in either case, before the dead cats began to fly. His Excellency is smart, and this column has boosted him for every triumph. But it can't boost this.

Somehow, the farewell blast before leaving his native strand doesn't sound so smart—and it won't sound so genuine to those who, in private conversation, have heard the Hon. Joseph blasting away at the very people and policies of which business, big and little, complain.

* * *

In the staid and restrained language of diplomacy in which he is so skilled, and of which "bellyaching" is a very mild sample. His Excellency's blasting has been far more picturesque and forceful than anything the three business golf players could possibly have said at Palm Beach.

I don't know who these "well-established" Chicago gents were. They sound like the "White House visitor" to me. They may also have been "well-fed" denizens of a "well-stocked club" and "modern Lord Macaulays," for all I know. But I do know the well-established, well-fed and fatuously optimistic things that, and in shorter and less elegant Anglo-Saxon monosyllables, I have heard him make "suggestions" of the kind he now thinks the President would like to hear. But the President would have liked to hear them in His Excellency's language. It was usually hot and sulphurous enough to wilt weeds at forty yards.

* * *

It is simply silly to say that it is up to "business" to suggest what government should do to end this depression. I have spent some time in Chicago recently and consulted many business men—big and little, well-established and on the skids. I didn't observe any confusion of counsel. They all thought just one thing, viz:

Government can't do anything to end the depression, but it can stop doing enough to end it promptly.

What it should stop doing should not be as a favor to or trade with business. That can be done as a blessing to consumers, farmers and the unemployed. It is chiefly and consolidated

Blonde Princess, Wrestler Tell Ann Story of Romance

First Thought Him 'Dreadful', Daughter Of Rajah Says

By ANN MARSTERS

This is a story about a beautiful princess who lived in a stone castle high on a hilltop, overlooking a kingdom of dark-skinned savages.

Her father, the White Rajah, is absolute monarch of this kingdom of Sarawak, which is situated in Northwest Borneo.

Now the beautiful princess journeyed to London, not long ago, where she met and fell in love with a handsome young wrestler. And so—so now they are married.

Not only that, but the princess, who is called Baba, and the champion wrestler of England, whose name is Bob Gregory, told us the story of their romance after their arrival in Boston.

ON WAY TO FILMLAND

They are on their way to Hollywood, where they have vague plans of seeking a movie career. Meanwhile, they will remain in Boston for a few days to look over the educational system here.

"I've heard that Boston is the educational center of America," said the princess. "So while I'm here, I want to visit a few of the colleges and gather some ideas about how they are run. You see, I think it would be nice to start a small college for the more enlightened people of Sarawak."

But about that romance—

It all began when the Ranee of Sarawak, Baba's mother, introduced Baba to Gregory at a party in London. The next time she saw Gregory was at a wrestling match, sponsored by the Duke and Duchess of Gloucester.

"I thought he was a dreadful person," said the golden-haired princess, "and I thought wrestling the most awful thing in the world. But then he wrote me a letter, and then he called on me, and then—we fell in love."

STORM OF DISAPPROVAL

And THAT'S when the storm of family disapproval came tumbling over them. Telegrams went flying back and forth—and it was one particularly ominous one from the Ranee, which read:

"Don't forget — any publicity and daddy cuts allowance. Mummie."

Anyway, they were married on November 22 in a London registry office—and Baba hasn't heard from her daddy since.

The Ranee, however, was in New York when the happy couple landed there last Tuesday—and she kissed her son-in-laws cheek and gave them her hearty blessing.

"So everything's all right with Mummie," said Baba, with a little sigh of thankfulness.

READY TO QUIT GAME

As for Gregory, who is 26 (four years older than his bride) and who was educated in England at Highgate and University College—well, Gregory is so delighted with his lovely princess, that he is willing to give up his wrestling career.

"I couldn't bear to have him wrestle over again," said Baba.

To which Bob replies (with adoring glances):

"I love to wrestle, but if it would disturb my wife, then of course I'll give it up."

Neither of the young people are worrying about that allowance from Daddy.

"Bob has plenty of money," said Baba, serenely, "and when we need more, he can always earn it."

EMPIRE BY CHINA SEA

It may be that you are as confused as we were about the history of Sarawak and its ruler, Baba's grandfather, James Brooke, was first White Rajah of this empire in the China Sea, which is inhabited by some 500,000 Dyaks, Malays, Kenhs and Chinese. It is under British protection, but its administration is entirely in the hands of the White Rajah. Baba's father is Sir Charles Vyner Brooke, and, incidentally, the princess' name is Valerie Brooke. (Baba is just a nickname.) Until she met Bob, the princess lived both in London, where she was educated, and in the land of ex-headhunters.

Now, as Mrs. Gregory, the princess of Sarawak is completely happy. But she is just a little apprehensive about what daddy is thinking.

Windsors Lease a Big Chateau Near Paris

Renting of Estate for Four Months Delays Trip to America

(Copyright, 1938)

PARIS, Jan. 27 (INS)—The Duke and Duchess of Windsor have rent ed a chateau in suburban Versailles for a four-month period and will postpone their trip to the United States at least until early summer.

This was revealed in International News Service today on high est authority.

The chateau already is furnished and the former British monarch and his American-born bride plan to move in within the next few weeks.

Their action in renting the Versailles chateau does definitely put all prospect of them going to America out of the question until the four-month period expires.

PALATIAL HOME

The Duke and Duchess will set up house temporarily in the chateau (a Manor owned by an American, Miss Tom Dupuy), who is going to Egypt for the winter.

The palatial home is beautifully furnished. It has four salons and an elaborately decorated dining room on the first floor and six bedrooms and several baths on the second floor.

There is a small keeper's cottage on the grounds which comprise five acres of gardens and a number of tennis courts.

The Windsors rented for the duke and duchess through an American agency. They inspected Paris and its suburbs for several months to find a place suitable for the royal couple.

VIEWED MANY ESTATES

During this time officials of the agency have made almost daily visits to estates and chateaux in and around Paris and on many of these expeditions they have been accompanied by the Windsors.

Miss Dupuy is the owner of the estate in the former Prince Brancas in Versailles. It has been occupied by Miss Dupuy's daughter, Mrs. William H. Hoover. She is the widow of Paul Dupuy, former French Minister to Persia.

Killing Couple to Die Tonight

CHESTER, Pa., Jan. 27 (AP)—Two world-condemned slayers, Angelo Reign Giarrusso and Mrs. Marie Perner, awaited hopelessly today the end of a week's torments and the dawn of Friday, the date they must shuffle off this mortal coil, shortly after midnight tonight.

Mrs. Perner indicated she had given up, her former belief God Himself would prevent her from being executed Friday receded to a flicker.

She was sentenced to death for the murder of her brother, William Kappell, on his wedding day last June.

Giarrusso, 22-year-old ruggerman, who admitted he shot Kappen as a result of a drunken argument, also had been told he must die. He and last farewells yesterday to his family, relatives and friends, who had come to serving 20 years for the same crime.

Cold Arrests Flood Peril

Boston Temperature Falls Below 20

Freezing temperatures averted flood threats in New England today as a new cold wave descended on the area.

Early today the mercury dropped below the 20 mark and indications were that it would fall to zero in this area all day, descending even lower by night. The readings today were nearly 20 degrees below those of corresponding hours yesterday.

Four men marooned on Deer Island light when their ferry was blown away by the wind were rescued by the Boston police boat William H. Mesick.

Stiff gales that accompanied the dropping thermometer drove the Boston to Kingfisher and to Princeton on the mud flats off Bird Island and fugitives were on hand to release them.

Engineers said the new cold waves had checked the rising course of waterways throughout New England.

Vet Preference Act Joke, Says McGuire

FALL RIVER, Jan. 27—Veterans preference is a joke, according to Works Progress Administration jobs are concerned, Senior Vice-Commander John J. McGuire of the American Legion said today.

Asserting the statute giving the veterans preference in police and firemen's examinations is ineffective because there were no vacancies in those offices, the ex-service man, McGuire asserted, President Roosevelt could solve the problem by putting WPA jobs under civil service. Veterans are given preference in civil service both in state and nation, he declared.

Ice Again 'Twists' Niagara 'Honeymoon' Span

The steel girders of one of the anchorages of the historic View bridge at Niagara Falls, joining the United States and Canada, are shown twisted and bent beneath terrific pressure of the ice jam. The ice rose almost 100 feet above the normal level of the river as man, standing by, was helpless to combat the power of nature which threatened destruction of the bridge.

International News Photograph Service

Recruited Engineers Endeavor to End Pressure

NIAGARA FALLS, N. Y., Jan. 27 (AP)—Engineers detected a slight new "twist" in the spidery steel work of Niagara's famous "Honeymoon Bridge" today, after the arch had held its position rigidly for nearly 24 hours against a record ice jam.

Observers said a groaning spread through the steelwork. A slight movement appeared in the interwined girders and then the sounds and motion suddenly ceased.

One of the already bent and twisted supporting members on the American shore pier "gave a little," engineers reported, after the pressure of the piled-up ice had been somewhat relieved.

A crew of workmen was building a timber-supporting crib around the pier when the shift occurred, only a few feet away.

The bridge withstood through the night the pressure of the worst Niagara gorge ice jam in 30 years.

Kennedy to Quit Maritime Job Next Week

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (INS)—Appearing at a secret session of the Senate Commerce Committee, Joseph P. Kennedy, retiring chairman of the U. S. Maritime Commission, had made a final plea today for federal machinery to settle maritime labor disputes.

The administration "trouble shooter," recently named ambassador to Great Britain, urged establishment of an agency similar to the railroad mediation board to end labor conflict in the shipping field.

Kennedy will resign his chairmanship of the commission next week, preparatory to sailing for London to assume his new duties at the Court of St. James.

"I don't believe labor unions have anything to fear from such a plan," he told the committee. "It has worked successfully in the railroad industry and should be equally successful in the maritime field."

Kennedy reiterated his plea for amendments to clarify the language of the maritime act.

"With these changes," he said, "the government can proceed with its efforts to stimulate new ship construction. The taxpayers will get a run for their money under this program because they will have a fast, modern merchant marine."

Tax on 'Thrift' Assailed by McCormack

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27—Foes of the proposed special undistributed profits tax on "middle class" corporations today claimed control, temporarily at least, of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee.

A canvass of the committee, foes revealed, showed a vote of 13 to 11 against levying a 20 percent penalty rate upon corporations of the family or closely held type earning above $40,000 a year and failing to distribute 70 percent of profits.

This levy, which is assailed as a tax on thrift and defended as a means of preventing tax avoidance, split the committee wide open.

Rep. McCormack (D) of Massachusetts, leading the fight against the penalty tax provision, proposed an alternative plan of tightening other provisions of the law to prevent tax avoidance.

"Everybody admits that use of the corporate structure to unreasonably withhold earnings to avoid surtaxes on stockholders is something all business men, other than the few who resort to it, condemn," said McCormack.

"However, the proposal to place punitive taxes on small and medium-sized corporations who are devoting their earnings to expansion of their business, thus giving additional employment, is not only unwise but unfair.

"The way to meet the abuses is to punish the guilty and not the innocent."

The DAILY WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND

"Washington Merry-Go-Round," by Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen, sprightly and informative column on the inside activities of political Washington, is now a daily feature of the Boston Evening American. It will also appear in the Boston Sunday Advertiser every Sunday.

By DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Real reason for the President's announcement that he is still trying to raise prices to 1926 levels was not the reason he gave publicly in explanation of the startling statement.

He justified his shift from his recent repeated complaints that prices are too high and retarding recovery, by saying that he had been referring to . . . prices of raw materials, such as copper. However it was steel, not copper, that prodded him into coming out for 1926 price levels, and behind this was a desire to do something for John L. Lewis.

On February 8 the CIO steel union opens negotiations with U. S. Steel on a new contract. The union will seek a renewal of its present wage scale with the argument that steel prices continue at a high peak. But should the price of steel break, the union would almost certainly have to take a wage cut.

The logic of this situation was very vigorously impressed on Roosevelt by Lewis during their conference several weeks ago.

"All this talk about prices being too high," the CIO boss said, "is threatening the country's wage structure. If you reduce prices it is going to come out of the hide of labor. What the country needs is not price cuts but increased purchasing power."

So, despite the opposition of some Brain Trusters, the President went to bat for his biggest vote deliverer.

UNION HOURS—Justice George Sutherland was explaining to an old friend the reason for his retirement from the bench.

"Four people realize," he said, "how hard members of the court work. A 10-hour day is not unusual. I found I couldn't keep that pace any longer, and rather than injure the work of the court I decided to make way for a younger and stronger man."

"Well, George," said the friend, smiling, "I think you missed a bet on the 10-hour day business. You should have rallied in the CIO and organized the court to obtain shorter hours and better working conditions."

TRAFFIC DEMON—Mrs. Edith Nourse Rogers, witty Massachusetts Congresswoman, who is again sponsoring a bill for a national traffic law, tells this story to illustrate the need for such legislation.

Receiving a telephone call that a friend had been seriously injured in a smashup, she rushed to the hospital where she found her friend sobbing but badly shaken.

"What happened?" Mrs. Rogers asked.

"Well, I was . . ." the friend started to say, when the nurse interrupted:

"I'll tell you. He tried to save three minutes going downtown and now he will be with us for three months."

NUTS OR BRAINS—Adolf Berle, member of the President's reviving Brain Trust, was scheduled to give a radio broadcast some time ago and rushed to give his appointment at 10:45 p. m. Arriving at the National Broadcasting studio in New York, together with Brain Trusters Rex Tugwell and Jerome Frank, . . . Berle told the man at the desk:

"I am A. A. Berle and I'm going to broadcast at 10:45."

"Sorry," said the reception clerk, looking over the radio program for the evening, "but your name is not down here."

"Absurd!" remonstrated Berle. "Absolutely absurd! Almost as inefficient as your Agriculture Department, Rex."

"The program at 10:45 is the 'Nut Trio,'" replied the reception clerk, looking at the three Brain Trusters. "Is that who you are?"

Finally Berle's friends had him look at the written notification of his broadcast and found that it was scheduled for the Columbia Broadcasting System, not NBC. They jumped in a taxi and arrived at Columbia just in time.

RHODE ISLAND PEACE—The private advice which is being sent up to Governor Quinn of Rhode Island from Washington politicos who are anxious to keep the state in the Democratic ranks next November is to lay off Walter E. O'Hara.

This advice is tendered because letters and personal pleas have been swamping Senator Theodore Green and Jim Farley's office urging the popular Rhode Island senator to come back and run for governor again. This would be Green's third term, and while he could probably be successful, there are several reasons why both he and the administration don't want him to make the supreme sacrifice.

First reason is that Green himself is enjoying his job as senator.

At the same time Jim Farley as well as the President, is extremely anxious to keep Rhode Island within the Democratic fold as far as the governorship is concerned.

They think Quinn can carry it if there is peace within Democratic ranks. But O'Hara, they recognize, has friends, and that's the reason for the advice for pacifism.

Price Fixing Seen Blow to Prosperity

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (INS)—Six noted economists issued a joint statement here opposing President Roosevelt's stand that industry should cut prices and maintain wages.

The economists declared:

"We sympathize with the high ideals of the present administration concerning an increase in the general well-being of the people. We respectfully submit however that the way to attain these ideals is not by arbitrarily fixing prices and wages. Increased production must be encouraged by facilitating readjustments according to the law of supply and demand."

ALL MUST SACRIFICE

The six economists who signed the statement are Dean A. Wellington Taylor of New York University's graduate school of business administration; Economics Professors Lewis H. Haney, James D. Magee and Willford I. King also of New York University; Dean Roswell C. McCrea of Columbia University's school of business and Professor Leland Rex Robinson also of Columbia.

They declared that in time of business recession "all classes must make mutual sacrifices. Adding "We are opposed to both wage and price rigidities, and favor flexibility, because the markets for American industry depend upon (1) the purchasing power of all people as consumers and (2) the earnings of laborers, enterprisers (including farmers), and investors as producers."

CITE BUILDING TRADES

The economists stated that high hourly wage rates do not create purchasing power and "this is evident in the building trades where unemployment and short hours bring low annual wage earnings despite high wage rates." Their statement continues:

"We believe that in the long run, the total purchasing power of a nation can be maintained or increased only by producing goods that are generally recognized as valuable. This is the only source of earned income.

"History shows that labor's real wages and standards of living are highest when profits are large."

W. R. Hearst Editorial On Recession Hailed

The following telegram was sent to William Randolph Hearst in response to a signed editorial by Mr. Hearst, entitled "Why Not a Little American Common Sense?" and dealing with the causes of the recession, which was published in the Hearst Sunday papers on January 23, 1938. The author of the telegram is a cotton broker in New York city.

HON. WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST,
Hearst Ranch, San Simeon, Calif.

May I offer my hearty congratulations on your statement in yesterday's New York Journal and American explaining necessity of constructive monetary action and tax relief.

Your statement is unanswerable.

In fact what was the purpose of revaluation if the gold profit was not to be used to give our country urgently needed monetary relief through expansion of the currency.

Sterilization or hoarding of these billions of dollars of gold is deflationary not only on our country but the world and has resulted in uneconomic capital and undistributed profit taxes that destroy any incentive for industrial progress or development and has thus resulted in a critical business and industrial depression with millions unemployed.

I believe without constructive monetary action and tax revision sound recovery is impossible.

You are at liberty to publish. Hoping you will keep up your good work and with best wishes.

Move to Curtail Lynch Debate Is Defeated

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)—The Senate rallied today a proposal for drastic limitation of debate on the anti-lynching bill, against which Southern senators have been filibustering since the session started.

The vote against drastic limitation, or cloture, gave new encouragement to the Southern block that the anti-lynching measure would be shelved.

Imposition of cloture, which would have limited further speechmaking against the bill to one hour for each senator, was requested in a petition signed by 37 senators.

Although supporters of the anti-lynching proposal said they would seek to keep it before the senate, opponents were expected to make an effort to shelve it.

Bare Fourth Slaying by Mad Pick Killer at State Hospital

report to the joint legislative rules committee.

The order asked for "evidence, testimony and findings resulting from the investigation he has made and is making with the aid of Captain John F. Stokes and State Detective Joseph Ferrari into conditions as they exist in any of the several institutions in the department of mental diseases."

Available facts about the latest murder revealed it as the most revolting ever reported from within the confines of a state institution.

It took place on the grounds of the hospital directly opposite the administration building and in sight of a half-dozen girl employes.

GIRLS SEE MURDER

A group of inmates, including the victim and his slayer were at work digging when suddenly the killer drew a pick and crushed in his victim's skull.

The killer then proceeded to hack away at his victim, holding hospital attendants at bay for several minutes with his wildly swinging pick.

As suddenly as he had gone mad the killer then regained a meek demeanor, dropped his weapon, leaned over his victim's body and whined:

"God told me to kill you."

The fourth slaying was reported to the mental disease department at the time it occurred, Dr. Hollis declared. He promised that he would forward a complete report of the incident to Buckley today.

According to the superintendent, a medical examination took place, but he could not recall whether or not an inquest had been held.

However, he declared, the cause was so obvious that an inquest would not have shed any light on the matter.

KIN SEEK TRANSFER

The first solution to the problem advocated since the multi-sided investigation began was advanced by Chairman William A. Brown of the legislative committee on public welfare. He told a Boston Evening American reporter:

"To avoid repetition of the recent incidents at Medfield, all persons with criminal inclinations committed to Massachusetts institutions should be sent to the Bridgewater hospital for the criminally insane."

Meanwhile, relatives of inmates at Medfield and attorneys for many of them were in readiness for a demand that the disease department to demand immediate transfer of their loved ones.

PLANS OWN REPORT

Dr. Perkins, to whom the complaints were addressed, said he would have no comment on the investigation until the present investigations are completed.

He advised "keep hands off," he declared.

"When all the smoke is cleared, I will submit a supplementary report to the Governor, weeding out the extraneous matter which has been brought out in the newspapers."

BATTLES IN WARDS

It was during Auditor Buckley's investigation of the hospital accounts that the near asphyxiation of the two sewer cleaning patients was revealed.

The two had descended ten feet below ground when overcome by fumes. They had been down several minutes when an attendant came along, called to them, but received no answer.

Peering into the hole he saw the 41 in 1936.

two men lying there unconscious, one on top of the other.

He obtained a gas mask and descended into the fume-filled chamber. Despite his protection, however, he too was overcome.

RESCUE OF TRIO

The three unconscious men were rescued by a fourth attendant who, with a moistened handkerchief over his face, was lowered into the sewer and placed ropes about the insert bodies of the gas victims.

Like the murders, this incident was kept secret until revealed today.

It was further learned that night attendants, some only 17 years old, are left in charge of large groups of patients and frequently during the night furious pitched battles occur among patients.

These young attendants are forced to summon aid, thus leaving other wards unprotected until the disturbance is halted.

TUSH TRIPLE PROBE

The triple investigation, one led by Commissioner of Public Safety McSweeney and Captain Stokes and by the Legislative Committee on Public Welfare and Investigation and headed by Rep. Carl Sheff (Boston), continued today, with each group keeping its developments secret from the other.

Representative Cox, revealing that he had talks with others in the Medfield institution, said all three were kept in solitary confinement.

Cox said he would recommend immediate construction of a special hospital to house dangerous and criminally insane persons to prevent any more murders in State asylums.

MURDER IS HIDDEN

Associate commissioners in the department of mental diseases will attend a special meeting called by Dr. Perkins for noon tomorrow to discuss methods of regulating situation.

Meanwhile, a recapitulation shows that between 1933 and 1936 there were 82 deaths resulting from causes other than natural at state mental institutions.

The listings do not contain an instance where the cause of death was given as violence, despite the Bardin killing in 1934.

Listing fractures, multiple injuries, alcoholism and suicides as causes, the figures reveal 11 deaths in 1933, 22 in 1934, 16 in 1935 and

Hits Mansfield Eleventh Hour Pay Boosts

Brehaut Says Tobin Would Be Justified In Canceling Them

Mayor Tobin "would be justified in canceling increases in the city payroll made by former Mayor Mansfield in the closing days of his administration, E. J. Brehaut, manager of the Chamber of Commerce Civic Bureau, declared today.

His statement was contained in a survey of municipal administration of which Brehaut is considered a national authority.

"In the last few days of his term, Mayor Mansfield was accused by City Council members of padding the city payroll after he created new positions, made appointments and granted salary increases.

Commented Brehaut:

INDEFENSIBLE, HE SAYS

"The action of former Mayor Mansfield in the closing days of his administration, although in our opinion was indefensible, was no different from the action of his predecessors.

"In view of the fact that no specific budget provisions were made for these new positions or salary increases, what legal authority permits mayors to do such things?"

Brehaut revealed that Boston is exempt from the terms of the Municipal Finance Act, Section 33A, General Laws, which forbids other cities and towns from making "last-minute" payroll increases.

"Corrective legislation plugging up this gap in the laws would be advisable," the Chamber of Commerce official stated.

JUSTIFIES CANCELATION

"The funds in Boston are made available by the city charter provision which permits the city auditor, with the approval of the mayor, between November 15 and January 1, to make transfers from appropriations to any other appropriation," he declared.

"Mayor Tobin would be justified in refusing to accept these new encumbrances on the payroll and in canceling them," he concluded.

Loyal

Stands by Erring Mate in Vain

Loyal to her husband despite all accusations, Mrs. Herbert L. Badger, Jr., of Walpole is shown entering Federal court with Badger, who is a Sunday school superintendent. He was convicted of violating the Mann act and sentenced to three years. He took a 14-year-old girl to Florida.

Jail for Church Aide in Girl Case

Badger's wife wept as Attorney Horace Guild, counsel for the defendant, made a plea for clemency.

"I cannot but help laying in mind that this defendant held himself out as an outstanding citizen, one fit to be trusted as a church official and he committed this act," Judge Sweeney declared.

"The real sufferers are the members of his family and the other concerned," he concluded before imposing sentence.

Dramatically and austerely Badger, who stood trembling at the bar while the judge spoke asked if he could say a few words.

"Speak to your counsel," Judge Sweeney replied.

BEGS FOR MERCY

"I would like to speak to you, your honor," Badger said.

"All right, go ahead."

"I would like mercy to be shown me," Badger began. "I want to be returned to my wife and children. I want to be with them. I want to live an honest and upright life.

"I was incarcerated in the Springfield jail. I came in contact with types of persons it was not my lot to associate with. I don't care to go to another jail and associate with men of that type.

"I want a chance, Your Honor. I want a chance to live the right kind of life. Won't you please help me? Please give me a chance. I'm sorry for my act."

Judge Sweeney replied:

"You should have thought of that before you committed the offense of which you were found guilty."

DIDN'T THINK IN TIME

"You should have had that in mind when you ruined this 14-year-old girl."

Badger turned and walked away and spoke briefly to his wife. He was then led away by the U. S. marshal's office.

Badger's defense in his "incarceration" in a springfield jail had heretofore not been brought out and no explanation was given in court.

GIRL IS ABSENT

The girl, who yesterday took the stand to describe a love affair which she said began at rehearsals for a Christmas party, was not in the crowded courtroom when counsel presented their final arguments and Judge Sweeney charged the jury.

Defining the law in his charge, Judge Sweeney declared:

The United States government is interested in so far as it applies to interstate transportation. When he leaves her from one state to another, I want to advise you that was interstate transportation.

It makes little difference whether the girl was induced by him. A charge you that even if the girl induced him to take her, that does not relieve him of the crime.

PLUNGE KILLS CONG. KENNEY, NATIVE N. E. LOTTERY BACKER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (AP)— Edward A. Kenney, 52-year-old New Jersey representative and native of Massachusetts, known for his advocacy of a national lottery, plunged or fell to his death from the waste floor of a fashionable hotel here during the night.

The body, discovered at 8 a. m. by a hotel waiter, was identified by Kenney's secretary, John M. Stewart. It was clad only in underwear.

The short, silvery-haired Representative had been a guest last night at a banquet attended by many prominent New Jersey politicians and business men.

Police said they believed that Kenney had left after the dinner to talk with friends in the room set aside for the banquet guests.

Apparently, they added, he decided to spend the night at the hotel, rather than return to his home in an apartment house in the Sixteenth street, N. W.

Mrs. Kenney, the former Jane Mae Jeffries of Charleston, West Va., was at their home in Cliffside Park, N. J. They were married in 1901 and had resided at Cliffside Park for 20 years. Also surviving are two sisters of Kenney, both of Revere, Mass.

Kenney's secretary said the Representative had suffered from dizzy spells in his office recently.

His office was a reference library of lotteries of every kind. As another person would collect stamps, Kenney collected lottery tickets.

ALWAYS WON APPLAUSE

Kenney's pet project on lottery led among his colleagues and was applauded every time he asked recognition to be added. He declared there was no doubt what his proposal would be.

In furtherance of his bill, Kenney had made an exhaustive study of history and was prepared at any time to cite numerous instances dating back to the earliest days of this country in which lotteries had been used to finance the government, churches, schools and public works.

His office was a reference library of lotteries of every kind. As another person would collect stamps, Kenney collected lottery tickets.

7 Saved at Fire In Dorchester

A Dorchester mother and her six children were led through smoke to safety early today from the home of Fields Corner police when fire broke out in their Arcadia street home, about 100 yards from station.

One of the children was carried out by Patrolman William Keenan. The rescue squad went into action when Joseph Colledanchese, 42, dashed into the station shouting his home was burning.

Those led to safety were Mrs. Colledanchese, 40, Marsaria, 21, Ann, 18, Helen, 17, Alice, 12, and Joseph, 9. Thirteen-year-old John was saved by Keenan. He was snatched from his bed asleep.

Bump Loosens Chip, Filling Station in Gas War Wrecked

DEDHAM, Tuesday, Jan. 27 (AP)— A metal patrolman judged in the case of Stewart Hall, 19-year-old Dedham youth, charged with driving a car while intoxicated, found lights smashed at its outfitting.

Physicians, unable to rouse the boy from overnight and his display of bruises, ordered him sent to the Memorial hospital. It was a hunch, Highway Patrolman Thomas Hall said, that prompted him to call the hospital after he had been unable to get a response at the police station. Hall said he would have tried to get him to raise his head prior to that time.

Hall said he would suffer no charges for a $1. He now sits at

Mrs. Stokowski Weds Prince

LOS ANGELES Jan. 27 (AP)— Mme. Armitage, concert singer, announced today the marriage in Phoenix, Ariz., of Mrs. Leopold Stokowski and Prince Lubomirski Alexis Zalstem-Zaleesky of Russia.

He said that they would leave Phoenix immediately on a honeymoon.

Zalstem-Zaleesky Armitage said, is a member of the former Russian nobility who has been studying agricultural methods in tropical countries for several years. He is writing a book on his experiences in the Russian Revolution and is preparing to become a citizen of the United States.

Mrs. Zalstem-Zaleesky, the former Evangeline Brewster Johnson, of a wealthy New Brunswick, N. J., family, divorced Stokowski in Las Vegas, Nev., on December 2. She charged extreme cruelty and won custody of their two daughters, Gloria Luba, 10, and Andrea Sadja, six. It was Stokowski's second marriage.

O'Hara Attacks Quinn's Suit

EAST GREENWICH, R. I. Jan. 27 (AP)—Hearing opened in Kent County Superior court today on motions by counsel for Walter E. O'Hara to strike out those parts of Governor Quinn's $500,000 suit against him which assert that the governor was slandered by in-

The suit is based on the radio address made by O'Hara on October 26 last, during the Narragansett Rack Track controversy.

In particular, Edward J. Hogan, of O'Hara's counsel, argued that O'Hara's radio speech mentioning a "deal" made by O'Hara with Colonel P. H. Quinn, the governor's uncle and former law partner, did not mean the governor was a party to the transaction.

The "deal" the suit alleges, was that Colonel Quinn was paid $20,000 and Colonel Quinn promised there would be no mention of Narragansett track in the governor's inaugural address.

Zog to Wed 'White Rose'

Fiancee Is Daughter Of an American

TIRANA, Albania, Jan. 27— Albanian court circles today confirmed the engagement of King Zog to the 22-year-old Hungarian Countess Geraldine Apponyi, known as the "White Rose" and whose mother was an American. They said an official announcement would be made shortly.

The Countess, daughter of the former Gladys Virginia Stewart of New York and Count Julius Nagy Apponyi, recently arrived in Tirana, accompanied by Hungarian relatives. She gave up a job as office in the Budapest National Museum at a salary of $45 a month to make the trip.

How religious questions raised by the fact that the King is a Mohammedan and the Countess a Catholic of a family holding Papal titles, would be solved is undisclosed.

Informed persons suggested, however, the countess would embrace Mohammedanism.

Finds Auto on Dump Then He's Fined $35

When Arthur F. Peckham, 46, of Massachusetts avenue, Arlington, a driver on the city's reservoir dump, discovered a perfectly good auto in the dump yesterday he thought it was too good to be true.

It was, as he found out in East Cambridge court today. He was fined $25 for driving while under the influences of liquor but the judges believed his story and filed a charge of using a car without authority.

Cregg Joins Staff At Police School

Another addition to the faculty of the Massachusetts State Police Academy, Commonwealth Pier, was made today when District Attorney Hugh A. Cregg of Essex County joined the teaching staff. Announcement was made by Commissioner Eugene M. McSweeney.

Cregg will instruct members of the court and its relationship to the police and instruct the men as to the best methods of presenting court evidence.

Hurley to Tell Stand On McCormack Bill

Governor Hurley today promised to make clear tonight in a radio address at 7:45 his attitude on the McCormack bill, giving the government control over possible power sites in New England's flood areas.

The Chief Executive denied a report that he had shifted from his original position supporting States' rights in the flood control question in support of the McCormack bill.

HAPPY RELIEF FROM PAINFUL BACKACHE

Caused by Tired Kidneys

Many of those grueling, nagging, painful backaches people blame on colds or strains are often caused by tired kidneys—and may be relieved when treated in the right way.

The kidneys are Nature's chief way of taking excess acids and poisonous waste out of the blood. They help keep about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste.

If the 15 miles of kidney tubes and filters don't work well, poisonous waste matter stays in the blood. Then poison may start nagging backache, rheumatic pains, loss of pep, and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from the blood. Get Doan's Pills.

400 Bloody Border Battles Fought; Stalin Waits for Nippon Attack

(Editor's note: Japan and Soviet Russia have already fought no less than 400 bloody battles in the undeclared warfare raging along the frontiers of Manchukuo and Mongolia. H. R. Knickerbocker, the noted foreign correspondent of International News Service, reveals in the tenth of his latest series. Along with this startling revelation, Knickerbocker discloses for the first time that Russia's far eastern air fleet consists of 2000 planes and described in graphic detail the preparations now being made for the war which is inevitable. Knickerbocker has just returned to Paris after a 12,500-mile trip across Asia and Europe undertaken to report on "The Yellow Typhoon and Red Storm Warnings.)

By H. R. KNICKERBOCKER
International News Service Staff Correspondent
(Copyright, 1938. Reproduction in whole or part prohibited)

PARIS, Jan. 27—There are nearly 1,000,000 soldiers in the far eastern Red army today and Japan has nearly 1,000,000 soldiers on the continent. No such concentration of forces has taken place since Europe's last great war.

Only half of the Japanese forces in the field are now fighting China, about 250,000 in North China and another 250,000 in the Shanghai-Nanking area.

The other 500,000 are concentrated along the Manchurian-Siberian and outer Mongolian borders, facing the million strong Far Eastern army.

To minimize the Russo-Japanese war has been going on for three years, according to the official Japanese record, the two armies have fought 400 engagements. Thousands have been killed in these fights of which the world for the most part knows nothing, and in no case the Red army claims to have wiped out an entire regiment of Japanese.

REDS WAIT ATTACK

Yet they are not "at war," and will not go to war until the Japanese army is ready to strike. The Red army will not move until it is attacked, or in the inflatable jargon of the Kremlin today.

Neither will it help China except in supplies, airplanes and munitions in quantities too small and coming too late to make any real difference to Chiang Kai-Shek, whom Stalin and Marshal Vassily Blucher-Galen, commander-in-chief of the Far Eastern army, have every reason to hate personally for his betrayal of the Soviets in 1926.

According to the latest official report of the Japanese army, the 250 cases of what they politely call "border troubles" with the Red army in 1937 is the highest for that six months of 1937 they had so. Although the record is not up to date, it is safe to assume they adds up to well over 400 by now.

Only a tiny fraction of these fights have been reported by Moscow or Tokio. Were there a free press in either country there would have invited the population to war long ago.

As it is, the two armies are constantly engaged in testing each other out, making forays across the border, attacking frontier posts, and occasionally coming over with bombing planes to inflict "punishing injury."

STALIN

BOMBING REPORTED

Red Army men proudly told me that "not long ago" a squadron of Red bombers flew from outer Mongolia to punish a Japanese force which had impudently pushed across the frontier from Japan and had "destroyed a regiment." Exaggerated though it may be, such a report gives an idea of the feelings of the contestants, if not a reliable estimate of the scale of hostilities.

The record proves that no "frontier incident" will ever start the war. It will only happen when the Japanese are convinced the right time has come.

That time will come logically after the Japanese have finished up their mop-up in China, and have consolidated their rear, while it should come before the Russians complete their second Trans-Siberian railway line, and before the Red army has recovered from what the Japanese believe to have been the serious effects of the execution of the eight Red generals upon the Red army's morale and leadership.

If it were left up to the Kwangtung army, as the Japanese call their forces in Manchuria, the war might start today. The Kwangtung army, composed of the best Japanese regulars, is intended to fight the Soviet Union. The less serious affair in China was handled mostly by Japanese reserves.

In September last year the Japanese were heavily engaged in China, fighting for a foothold in Shanghai and just beginning to advance in North China. Bogomoloff, the Soviet ambassador to Nanking, and General Lepine, the Soviet military attache, flew to Moscow to advise the Kremlin that now was the best time to catch Japan at a disadvantage, ac strike her from behind while she faced China.

THEY LOST ARGUMENT

Stalin relieved both men of their posts and they have not been heard of since. This characteristically rough repudiation of their advice proved beyond a doubt that the Red army was going to wait because Stalin believes that time is on his side.

It is as good as your life is worth to ask questions in Vladivostok about details of the army, but I finally made friends with a pilot officer and obtained a rough idea of the strength of the Far Eastern air fleet.

It is, he declared, larger than the entire Japanese air fleet, which lists 1000 first-line warplanes.

"How much larger?" I asked. "Twice as large," he replied.

Although he may seem to have been boasting, information from every other source indicates that in truth the Far Eastern air fleet may number with its reserves a total of 2000 warplanes.

Admittedly the Russian pilots are extremely good, and far better than the Japanese, whose bravery is beyond reproach, but whose eyesight is not. Upon his air fleet, Stalin banks heavily.

Another article in H. R. Knickerbocker's dramatic series on "The Yellow Typhoon and Red Storm Warnings" will appear exclusively in tomorrow's Boston Evening American.

Constipation! Auto-Intoxication Self-Poisoning!

NEARLY all illnesses are directly or indirectly said to be caused by constipation or improper elimination. Sour stomach, heartburn, headache, backache, bad breath, rheumatic and arthritic pains, ringing of the ears and dizziness are but symptoms of toxic poisoning. Intestinal intoxication means that the Colon is overloaded and needs help. Cheney's Agar & Oil naturally relieves this condition. It is a combination of Russian Mineral Oil and Agar again. The combination acts on the lazy muscular system, arouses peristalsis, invigorates the liver and bowels, thus eliminating waste matter and poisons. The mineral oil is not absorbed but enters the walls of the intestines and Agar & Agar soaks up many times its weight in water, gives a normal action that carries off the waste. Insist on Cheney's Agar & Oil. No alcohol—no habit forming drugs—no special diet. Not a physician's prescription.

Jackson Backs High Wages in Talk Here

Harvard Club Will Hear Newly-Named U. S. Solicitor

A high wage scale for labor means good business, Robert Jackson, newly-nominated as solicitor-general of the United States, declared during a Boston visit today.

Here to address the Harvard Club, the ambitious assistant U. S. Attorney-General, in a statement to the Boston News Bureau, said that "industry needs to be protected from a low wage economy in the United States."

"There are business men who regard advocacy of a high wage for labor as an attack on business," he asserted.

"I believe in a high wage scale for labor as a matter fo good business and long ago advocated it in my city."

A high standard of living, with many purchases made possible by high wages, results in business prosperity, Jackson declared.

WAGES HOME PROTECTION

"We simply cannot afford to have the homes of modest people and the lower income groups demoralized by periodic unemployment," he said.

The New Dealer declared he stood firmly behind his previous attacks upon "monopolistic groups of big business." Hhut he emphasized the fact he is not opposed to all big business citing the Eastern Kodak Co. as a beneficial industry of major size.

The Rochester, N. Y., Gas & Electric Co. also met his approval as a large concern rendering essential utility service to half a million people.

"You and I know," he declared, that sound operating utility companies have no trouble getting credit where they do not have unsound holding companies upon their backs."

TELLS OF DISTRESS

Financial bureaucracies that try to get control of basic industries came in for Jackson's condemnation.

"In the main they are parasites," he asserted. "They do not strive for industrial success based on efficiency. It is this financial concentration which we fear and distrust."

No public policy that will make it difficult to concentrate control of American industry in the hands of a few "for purposes of financial exploitation," will meet with his approval, Jackson said.

Soviets Silent On Spy Demand

MOSCOW, Jan. 27 (AP) — Informed persons said today a deadlock had developed between the United States and Soviet governments over the demand that an American embassy official be permitted to visit Mrs. Ruth Marie Rubens in prison.

It was understood the foreign office had not replied to the embassy note of January 25, insisting on the second time in such an interview, and foreign circles expected embassy officials to depart soon from Washington.

Mrs. Rubens, an American citizen, was arrested December 9 on charges of espionage and Soviet authorities have refused to permit American officials to visit her until investigation of her case is completed.

Court Wrestles With Art Suit

Seek to Decide Who Owns Tapestries

CLEVELAND, Jan. 27 — The courts sought today to untangle a thread of ownership as intricate as the fantastic pattern woven into six stolen Gobelin tapestries recovered here through the detective work of Curator G. Harold Edgell of the Boston Museum of Fine Arts.

The ancient hangings are worth at least half a million dollars, Edgell notified police when he was offered them for $200,000.

Claiming ownership in a replevin suit was James W. Ryan attorney for Morgan Brothers warehouses of New York. He said the warehouses obtained the tapestries when the Fox Film Corporation went into receivership, and that they were stolen in 1932.

Fighting to retain them were Francis Zinsmeer and George F. Ebenger, former operators of a Cleveland club, who said a Warren, O., business man gave the tapestries as security for a $15,000 loan in 1932.

War Threat in Europe Like '14, Says Langer

Exactly the same situation that led to war in 1914 is precipitating war in Europe at the present time, Professor Professor William L. Langer told an audience of women today at Agassiz House, Cambridge.

The Langer spoke on "The Roots of War" until Luncheon Meeting of Women Voters in conjunction with Radcliffe College.

Classes have been held annually by the class since 1922 for the general education of women, with this year's sessions concentrated on foreign affairs.

"The division of Europe into two rival camps really led up to the war in 1914," Professor Langer told the women today, "and it is the same situation that is precipitating war at the present time.

PUTS BLAME ON FRANCE

"Much of the trouble in the present crisis has been caused by France, because it has taken an unwise and lop-sided attitude and has rushed into too many alliances in order to protect herself.

"If France had not been so selfish, I feel that the German people would not have taken up with Hitler so strongly and Hitler would not have attained the power he has today."

Professor Langer said Premier Laval's compact with Mussolini before the Ethiopia war was "the greatest blunder in modern diplomacy."

"Mussolini cashed his checks in Ethiopia," said Dr. Langer.

He said further that there is "no real danger of an alliance between Germany, Italy and Japan, because they all want essentially the same things and each wants them for itself."

READY WITHIN YEAR

The combination of the three, however, has a great nuisance power to the other nations of the world," he declared.

The democratic nations, England and the United States, particularly England he said, have not been prepared up to this time to enter into controversy, "but within a year, America and England having progressed with their armament programs, will be prepared to take a firmer stand in the interest of democracy."

George La Piana, professor of church history at Harvard, spoke on "The Vatican and International Problems of Today," and discussed the difficult situation which the Catholic Church finds itself in the international situation.

Goosestepping Delights Duce

Names It Roman Step, Prepares for Hitler

ROME, Jan 27 (AP)—Premier Mussolini, delighted at having taught 10,000 Fascist militiamen the German goosestep, today jumped from a reviewing stand and goosestepped behind the parading soldiers.

This was part of preparation for the state visit of Chancellor Hitler next May. Mussolini wanted to parade goosestepping troops in Hitler's honor and today inspected the chosen units after 15 days' training.

He decided they had learned the trick Germán stride well enough for a show for Hitler, renamed it the "Roman step" and indicated it may become the regular step for Fascist parades.

Nazis Open New Attack Against Berlin Jews

Anti-Semitic Organ Launches Its Most Bitter Drive

BERLIN, Jan. 27 (INS)—A violent new attack on Jewry by Nazi Germany's leading anti-Semitic organ, Der Stuermer, disclosed today that Julius Streicher, the paper's Jew-baiting editor, had emerged victorious in his controversy with Reich officials over the racial question.

Banned for only a few days, Der Stuermer reappeared today with glaring anti-Jewish headlines and gross pictorial onslaughts against Jews in Hollywood and elsewhere.

PLANS NEW DRIVE

To signalize his triumph, Streicher flooded Berlin with five-foot posters calling attention to his paper's latest "special issue" with its columns of tirade against Jewry.

Actual background of the controversy between Streicher and Dr. Paul Joseph Goebbels, minister of propaganda, was cloaked in mystery.

When his paper was banned a short while ago for running a series of special issues demanding the death penalty for Aryans incurring the "racial disgrace" of marrying Jews, reports immediately arose that the government was planning to set up in its anti-Semitic campaign.

"NON-EXISTING NEWS"

Some sort of face-saving agreement was reached, however, whereby Der Stuermer was found guilty of publishing news of a non-existent decree dealing with foreign exchange violations. The editor of the paper and a few members of his staff were dismissed, but Streicher was allowed to remain and apparently given official approval of his editorial activities.

Today's edition carried another headline with the words "Death Penalty and Racial Disgrace," and on the front page was a two-column picture of a young Hollywood actress with her director and producer. The caption under the painting in almost grotesque terms the unsound fate of innocent girls at the hands of Jews, defies respectable translation.

Holy See Lashes 'Insane Nazi Ideology'

Goebbels Warns Pope To 'Keep Hands Off Politics'

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 27 (INS)—The Holy See and Nazi Germany are at grips today in a new phase of their long-standing controversy.

Osservatore Romano, most authentic journalistic mirror of the Vatican, lashed out at Nazidom's "arbitrary and insane ideology."

In Berlin, Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels' newspaper, Der Angriff, called upon Pope Pius to keep "hands off politics."

PRIESTS DEFENDED

Osservatore Romano's editorial, defended German priests who had been termed "traitors" by the Nazi press. Not until the Nazi conflict in religious affairs is fundamentally altered, the newspaper warned, can the German government expect cooperation of priests. Said the editorial:

"It is asked that we adhere to the racial myth, the levelling of classes to idolatry, the tyrannical dictatorship of a cast or a system. How can we respond to this demand—we priests of Christ?"

OPEN OPPOSITION

Wherever and wherever the "imposition of an arbitrary and insane ideology" is attempted, Osservatore continued:

"We are not absent—we are in open opposition."

Der Angriff attacked the Pope and Cardinal Pacelli, papal secretary of state, charged His Holiness with responsibility for a recent attack on "totalitarian experiments," voiced by Monsignor Sramek, Czech leader in Czechoslovakia. Sramek was recently received in audience by the Pope.

$2000 More for 'Ism' Quiz

The resolve which asks that an additional $2000 be appropriated for the committee investigating communism and other "isms" in the state has passed to be engrossed in the House.

Wenzler Pauses Over 2 Setbacks

Representative John R. Wenzler of South Boston had a double setback to consider today—he was the first member of the House to be seated during the present session and his bill to forbid public utility employes holding office was defeated.

After an adverse report on the bill by the judiciary committee Wenzler repeatedly indulged in personalities from the floor. Speaker Cahill ordered him seated. Then the House killed the bill.

Japs Wait More Troops for Drive

SHANGHAI, Jan. 27 (INS)—Pushing ahead in one Lunghai battle area, Japanese troops today occupied Liuchiaiaie, a railroad station on the "no man's land" south west of Yenchow.

Nippon's large-scale drive in that area has not yet developed, however, Japanese authorities here said but is expected to get under way soon after the Japanese have sufficient reinforcements are taken to the front.

Meanwhile, Chinese reports from Hankow claimed Japanese troops have withdrawn from the town of Chuchiang, and that Kiukiang is encircled by mobile Chinese columns in that area.

Other Hankow advices said if Japanese planes raided the temporary capital of Chiang Kai-Shek regime today, concentrating on the military airdrome. The raiders also attempted—without success—it was claimed—to bomb the Hankow arsenal.

George La Piana, professor of church history at Harvard, spoke on "The Vatican and International Problems of Today," and discussed the difficult situation which the Catholic Church finds itself in the international situation.

BOSTON SOCIALITES may have the reputation of being conservative to the point of being reactionary . . . but they are always quick to give their whole hearted support to any meritorious musical or cultural enterprise . . .

The Chamber Orchestra concerts, conducted by Bernard Zighera, which were an innovation in Boston's musical activities last winter, have been rapidly gaining fame . . . and last evening when Mr. Zighera presented the second in his new series of concerts, he had the pleasure of performing before a large and aristocratic social audience . . .

ONE OF HIS HIGHEST subordinates has suggested to Police Commissioner Timilty that special officers in the Boston station houses be placed under command of the detective bureau.

Democrats Buckley, Dever and Kelly talked things over at a drug-store luncheon at Ashburton place and Bowdoin street after Congressman Flaherty's father was buried from the church. I would like to add its mite of eulogy to editorial epitaphs about Deputy Superintendent Bill Livingston. "Livvy" was one of the best friends a fellow could have.

Dismal Kenyon's expression of not being able to appreciate the acting of Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in "Idiot's Delight" made the overstuffed feel a bit more normal . . . After a review of the play in which your correspondent expressed a similar viewpoint, the badgering was quite terrible . . . Two years later, the able Kenyon makes it a chorus of two . . . Rep. John Tyler of Dorchester has sponsored a bill which would make the Constitution "required reading" . . . It's mentioning would be part of high school tests . . .

Annette Gaye was given an audition by Maestro Bob Hayes at El Morocco last night . . . Two night clubs and one uptown hotel are on the market . . . Sen. Thomas H. Bradley, with a large following in the northern end of the county, will run for Middlesex County Commissioner . . . He's a Republican . . . At the Casa Manana, Morton Downey is singing a song called "After Midnight," words by Jim Healey, the newspaperman . . . Niela Goodelle writes from London that business is good at the Hotel Ritz, and that entertainers, including herself, are finding it profitable to televise . . .

WHISTLES OF SURPRISE:

Nature-lovers pop up in the strangest places . . . Two have come to light in this newspaper's "night-side," members of the "lobster trick" who toil from midnight until after dawn . . . One, Iris Bianca said Buck Flynn, writes: "Let me inform you that we have had robins—three chirping—all winter in Hingham . . . When they started to fly south, snow had already set in and the neighbors are feeding them daily." This was in reference to a mention that Brookline had sighted a red-breast . . .

As a postscript to the letter, a new side of that story but kindly gentleman, Night City Editor Al Whelden, is brought to light. "I might add," Mr. Whelden writes, "that my apple trees still bear some of last year's apples despite the cold. They are overripe, but still cling to their branches."

Maybe it's the one o'clock closing hour—coupled with the late 8 o'clock opening . . .

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY:

Fred Waring, the Boston band player, appears in "Hollywood Hotel" as one of the Raymond Scott orchestra . . . New Years Greetings has just arrived from Captain Joe Moon, once a bartender at Dinty Moore's, and always a clever artist with a pencil . . . He is managing the Seven Seas Club in Worcester . . . "Sonny" Stevens has organized an orchestra which advertises itself as "playing music as new as tomorrow" . . . The Gayety will change its double feature bills on Sundays and Thursdays, beginning Sunday. Grover Burkhardt, popular manager of the Howard, will be back in harness shortly.

The Theater Treasurers' Club failed to find enough candidates to hold a real election this year. Hugo Lundgren is president again, a title he has held since the days of Dandelion and Fred Bond, box office crew of the Copley. Into service, again the Hartmans, Paul and Grace, are hooked into Boston in the offseason for yet another theatrical season. Parents are committed to the sport of luff, rack and get well. Republic, Autry at War

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 27—A good old fashioned battle is being planned in Hollywood with the center of the ring cleared to make room for Gene Autry and his Republic boss, Herbert Yates.

Both Autry and Yates claim grievance. Autry's note to this desk yesterday in a wire from Nashville in which he claims Republic is doing him wrong by not paying him enough and in forcing exhibitors to take inferior pictures in order to get the Autry westerns. Now on personal appearances Autry says he learned all this by talking to theater owners, but furthermore, that his pictures rate high box

Yates answers by denying all of the cowboy's allegations, adding that Gene was given two raises and at the time of the last increase he agreed not to mention money again.

John Stahl is getting ready to start his Irene Dunne movie next month for Universal. He's calling it "A Letter of Introduction" and it's a dramatic musical with New York's theater life as the background so it's fitting that Adolphe Menjou should be signed for one of the principal male roles. And of course Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy head the featured list of players.

• • •

I've heard everything Sonja Henie is asking for her release from 20th Century-Fox. The little ice skater had never made a picture and could barely speak English when Darryl Zanuck signed her and spent hundreds of thousands of dollars building her to stardom. And now Sonja, who was the sweetest thing I ever met when she first came to Hollywood, is going temperamental on us.

Her grievance is the long working hours at the studio and her annoyance at being asked to miss her highly successful annual appearance tour. Darryl Zanuck said today that he couldn't believe Sonja was really refusing to come back to Hollywood since he had discussed with her only recently the next picture they will "play Ball at College," which Roy Del Ruth is now preparing to direct.

• • •

A line or two: Oswald, Ken Murray's famous sidekick, whose only revival for duplicness on the air is Gracie Allen, has been signed for a comedy role in "You Can't Take It With You." Oswald's name is Tony Labriola and here's a tip to Frank Capra—get that boy to play the accordion in the picture.

Curvaceous Toby Wing, night clubbing in New York has been signed by Cole Porter for the new Tallulah Bankhead-Clifton Webb revue. Report is that Tallulah held out on her contract for some weeks until Porter agreed to give her top billing.

Snapshots of Hollywood

WENDY BARRIE wearing a flu mask to protect her family from flu germs which had her down; FRANCHOT TONE arrives tomorrow and JOAN CRAWFORD will be at the station to meet him, squelching all those rumors of a separation; When the CROSBY'S brought the new baby home from the hospital BING said to his eldest, GARY—Well, how do you like him? GARY replied, "I'll tell you one thing—I'm going to be meaner to this guy than I was to the twins." GARY blames BING for not delivering the promised gift . . .

EDGAR BERGEN and ANDREA LEEDS with CHARLIE sitting between them, dropped in to the "Goldwyn Follies" preview with a police escort—in a tiny Austin of all things . . . ALBERT ARLEN and BILT-MARGARET LINDSAY, JACK WHITNEY and LORETTA YOUNG, a foursome of socialite and film favorites, were followed right into the theater by the press photographers . . . JON HALL escorted GERTRUDE NIESEN; RUDY VALLEE walked in the back door to the Goldwyn premiere and GLORIA YOUNGBLOOD in the front but they met inside . . .

FANNY BRICE, come what may in her matrimonial troubles, is buying a home in California. She has been living in COUNTESS DI FRASSO'S mansion. SID ROGELL and MARK HELLINGER will be married February 8 at her home in Wilkesharre. She leaves today for Boston and a week later Theyll honeymoon in New York for two weeks . . . ANITA LOUISE and RONALD REAGAN aren't as serious. PAULETTE GODDARD and PAT DI CICCO at a night spot. That's all for today.

Success Lingers On

Dorothy Lamour wears no furs in "The Hurricane," in which she is co-starred with Jon Hall and which has been held over for a second week at Loew's State and Orpheum.

Loew's Hit Held Over

"The Hurricane," Samuel Goldwyn's stunning South Sea romance-drama starring the weather as well as Dorothy Lamour and Jon Hall, is being held over a second week at Loew's State and Orpheum theaters. The companion picture is "Peg, Borrow or Steal."

Dorothy Lamour and Jon Hall, the latter a Tacmahih newcomer, are now the picture stars Marama and Terangi, who are being married at a festive native wedding on the island of Manikoa as the picture here opens. They are separated shortly after by Terangi's duties as first mate of the Tahiti-bound schooner. While in Tahiti, a white man insults him, he strikes the man and he is imprisoned.

Terangi's escape and subsequent heroic courage in rescuing Manuiona's inhabitants when a great hurricane wreaks havoc on the island build up to a thrilling finale

Carole Lombard Film for Uptown

Carole Lombard Fred MacMurray and John Barrymore star in "The Princess Comes Across," a "True Confession," starting the week beginning tomorrow.

Dunne-Taylor Film at Hub

The Hub screen for the week, starting tomorrow, will offer a three-star program, with "Magnificent Obsession," based on Lloyd C. Douglas' best selling novel, as featured attraction.

Irene Dunne and Robert Taylor are co-starred in this memorable love story, which should be a well rounded revival to those fans who failed to see "Magnificent Obsession" when it was originally shown here.

The second feature, "San Quentin," is a melodramatic thriller which has for its locale the famed old prison on the shore of San Francisco Bay. Pat O'Brien is starred.

Third item of importance is the showing of a widely discussed newsreel, presenting in authoritative details conditions prevailing in Nazi Germany.

'Firefly' to Olympia

"The Firefly," screen picturization of Rudolph Friml's celebrated operetta, co-starring Jeanette MacDonald, Allan Jones and Warren William, tops the new Washington time Olympia program opening Saturday. The co-feature will be "Love Is on the Air."

DEL FINDS HERSELF HEIRESS TO FORTUNE

HE'S HAD BUSY DAY. As Del and Jerry enter 53 State street to find truth about inheritance, little Timmy is tired and Jerry carries him up the stone steps of the office building worn hollow by the tread of many legions of lawyers. Jerry believes lollipop may revive Timmy. He's right.

SHEILA'S HUNCH GOOD! Registrar of Deeds William Fitzgerald shows valuable holdings, though mortgaged, have never been foreclosed upon, and that firm of lawyers in State street holds the lien. Little aids Jerry and Del in their investigation of Commonwealth avenue property to which Del's husband, Vince, is apparent heir. Records Timmy may not follow it all, but he is interested spectator.

JERRY EXPLAINS FORTUNE. Seated in registry of deeds, Jerry explains to Del and Timmy that, while Vince's property is mortgaged, the taxes have been paid regularly and there has been no attempt to foreclose. He proposes visit to State street lawyer, who he believes can explain matter fully. Persons circled in photograph have $5 waiting for them at the Boston American office.

SUDDEN WEALTH. As Waitress Mildred Smart takes their order in Rosoff's restaurant, Jerry and Del detail to Sheila the wonderful news of Vince's inheritance which has resulted from her chance sight of an old tax record. Sheila, however, gives Jerry credit for digging up the facts. Timmy isn't saying much, but it has been a big day for the youngster in every way.

FORTUNE SMILES ON GREEFY: While Del is celebrating her good luck, Greefy Knopman has a bit of his own. What more could be desired by a murder fugitive aboard a train for Montreal, than a drunken, well-dressed youth alone in an unlocked compartment on the train? So Greefy's gun crashes against Brad Talton's head and the gunman searches the youth's pockets.

Jerry decides little Timmy Barton should have something special to remember the day he was shown to be heir to fortune. "Orn!" said Timmy to William J. Curley, at the cigar stand in 51 State street. And an orange lollypop was exactly what Timmy got. As lawyer says, boys should be sticky.

72 Million Hurley State Budget Weighed

Move to Question It From House Floor Defeated

Governor Hurley's budget request of $72,888,242 for the current year was taken for consideration by the House ways and means committee today after a move to quiz the governor from the floor of the House had been defeated.

The budget is $117,741 less than was asked by the state for the current year but is more than all except seven years in the past 20 and $1,227,242 more than was appropriated for the present year. Eight are over the $70,000,000 mark.

Tobacco Experts Smoke Luckies 2 to 1

Lee Moore—who judged 1½ million lbs. of tobacco in 3 weeks—explains why so many independent experts "go for" Luckies

HAVE YOU HEARD THE CHANT OF THE TOBACCO AUCTIONEER?
Listen to "Your Hollywood Parade"
"Your Hit Parade"
"Your News Parade"
"Melody Puzzles"

"MY LIFE has been tobacco," says Mr. Moore. "I started as a tobacco farmer. Then, in 1909, I became an independent buyer—in 1920 a warehouseman—and since 1927 I've had my own tobacco warehouse in Georgia.

"It's a matter of dollars and cents to me to be able to judge tobacco quickly and accurately. Now I know exactly what kind of tobacco Lucky Strike buys. So I've smoked Luckies for 11 years."

This is the honest opinion of an impartial expert who sells tobacco to all cigarette manufacturers, but who is not connected with any. And there are many other such experts who agree with Mr. Moore.

Sworn records show that, among independent tobacco experts—not connected with any cigarette manufacturer—Luckies have twice as many exclusive smokers as have all the other cigarettes combined.

GIRL About TOWN

By MARJORIE McBRIDE

Being a magician isn't what it used to be. Many of them now have night club assignments and working a few feet from your public is much harder than doing your tricks on a roomy stage where distance makes illusion simple.

Marjorie McBride

Difficult as his profession has become, Louis Mora of Boston has never regretted the 38 years he has devoted to it. He is president of the New England Society of Magicians and Vice-President of the International Society. He is a walking encyclopedia of magical lore, and will tell you anything you want to know except how to perform some of the legendary tricks of the trade.

A smart child with a quick eye is more likely to detect a trick than an adult, he says. The child's mind is simple and direct and suggests the obvious solution, which usually is the right one. Sophisticated adults watch for incredibly clever sleight of hand and miss it.

The hardest thing for a magician to do is to go through his routine in pantomime. Clever and misleading talk is part of a magician's stock in trade.

Gold IS WHERE YOU FIND IT

From the Novel by Clements Ripley

What Has Happened:

The 49 days were gone. The year 1848 had come. And the first gold in California, poured through the Treasury, had assured the Union through the first great modern war the world has ever seen.

Two great Mexican mastiffs started the trouble at Rancho Ranch. They killed Ramon, the mad dog. They frightened Rosanna, the beautiful wife of Ralph Ferris, gunslinger brother, and Ferris killed the owner of the ranch.

Seeking a home for his wife, Ferris chose a ranch where there was already a house, the latter far from ideal and quashing Anglo-Saxon ideas.

Ralph, seeing the opportunity, expressed a desire to obtain a clear title to the property. The Colonel objected—violently.

Ralph, in exchange for the ranch, demanded the Colonel buy his share of Rancho Ranch.

CHAPTER 3

Colonel Ferris' cheeks whitened. "I—I reckon yo' runnin', Bud! I reckon—well then, a hundred thousand dollars!"

It was once and a half what Ralph's share was worth. But something had to be done right now to bring Bud to his senses!

"It's a trade, Rancho said even.

"It's a trade, Cash of course."

"I said it was a trade. Cash, of course."

"Cash —" the Colonel, breathing heavily, seemed to tower. "I had figured my check would be good with you. However, if —"

"Ain't" Ralph was on his feet. "Don't talk like a fool! I only meant—uh, good Lord, man don't take it so hard."

"Cash" he said slowly. "Or certified check within 48 hours. All I ask is you'll be gone by then."

"Don't worry," he said. "I'll be gone."

A hundred thousand dollars—him! Naturally the [illegible] "There's nobody's note we'd rather have. But—a hundred thousand dollars; we'd have to have something to show for that you understand."

"Why—yes, I reckon. Yes" [illegible] "Mortgage"

Nash replied. "A mortgage on Bannockburn. Why, yes, I think we can arrange that. Have to have a survey, of course—approval of the directors. I should think some time next week."

"WHY—SO CHEEK"

"Today, Nixon! I am to have that money right now. You know the property, and you know me. Bannockburn's good for a hundred thousand dollars and I'm good for it. Or we're not."

"HE TOOK CZAR

Just one thing, Colonel. A matter of form, but the directors [illegible] me. If you don't mind—what's the money for? Investment perhaps?"

"My brother—" he began. "My brother Ralph's going into mining, hydraulic mining."

"You don't say. Why now, sir, that's fine. Big things going to be done up in the Feather and Yuba in the next few years. Yes, sir, the hydraulic process is a coming thing. It wouldn't surprise me if we saw a bigger thing than the Comstock."

"Possible," said the Colonel. "Possible. Will you have 'em give me notes, please—no, check."

Nash and Pereira had left. [illegible] Newspaper [illegible] the Colonel [illegible] against the [illegible]

The Colonel drew a deep, ragged breath. He glanced at the plane trees. They wouldn't be out for another three days but the pussy willows were here! Spring!

He strode into the house. "Serena! Oh, Serena!"

The Colonel's foot stamped. He had wanted Czar on this day of new grass and new hay eaten, or sniffed, at the stallion under the sense of power and flight—Well, no matter! He swung up.

The hoofs of the little almond trees were swelling. Green shoots were everywhere—the smell of rich, damp earth. He thought of Serena. She was the one person he could be thoroughly foolish with. Her secret name for him—Koha Khan.

Serena, though—that frothing orchard! The Colonel liked to think of his regiment of fire-gang plows, 12 miles to the p now, steaming over the horizon and out of sight.

What! The ripe gold, rippling to the wind. Great gangs of sweating reapers—the long piles of piled wagons, tall ships thundering around the Horn to feed the world.

Well, darn it, the world wouldn't be fed if he didn't get those plows

Try Horseradish Hollandaise for New Fillip

By MARTHA LEE

AND NOW comes a request from a gentleman who enjoys the flavor of horseradish.

Yes indeed, we agree that this pungent root deserves a real place in cookery as well as its place on the table as a condiment.

We remember when the horseradish roots were dug from the ground in early spring as soon as it was possible to take them from the thawing earth. The grating process was undertaken in the open air on the back porch lest we drown in our own tears.

Grated horseradish mixed with [illegible] and bottled in screw top jars, prepared horseradish should be kept in a dark cool place and [illegible]

The Surest Cure For Hate

By Elsie Robinson

In his gentle, shining story—"What Is a Miracle?"—Manuel Komroff wrote this line.

"We live by forgetting."

Four words—but they hold a complete philosophy for any life . . . the cure for hate, self-pity and cancerous grief . . . the seed of hope and growth.

"We life by forgetting!" If you could live those four words for just one week, your whole life would be altered. And you would be reborn . . . filled, again, with the fresh courage and faith you knew at sixteen.

Consider your own life. What has killed you?

"But I'm not dead!" you say indignantly.

No—but you're dying! Wasting away slowly, secretly. Each morning you feel less desire and delight . . . less vigor and enthusiasm. And a dreadful helplessness seems shackling you . . . dragging you down and down.

It's all so wrong! You're still young enough . . . seem mighty strong and attractive . . . get out of it! Your friends advise. But you can't seem to . . . You're dropped. Because? WHAT IS WASTING YOU? ROBBING YOU? KILLING YOU? YOUR OWN MEMORIES. THE ACCUMULATED POISON OF YOU'LL GAIN IN A [illegible]

Sunday Night Menu Awaits All Readers

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

So many young women who wish to prepare attractive, though inexpensive, meals for their boy friends are writing to me that I have prepared a menu especially for them

I do hope at least a thousand of the girls who read this column will request it. (Just send me a three-cent, stamped envelope and the recipes are yours, by return mail.)

There is no better way for a young woman to win a young man's heart than through his stomach. Ask him to your house and serving him a supper of dishes that she knows he likes.

And a thoughtful, capable young woman is respected by a young man. Offer to help your friends at one of these home suppers.

My first point goes to Dorothea, who is a needy who signs herself H. of F.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

A PERSISTENT SUITOR

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I became interested in a certain [illegible] and started going to the same church she attends.

We went out several times and then had a quarrel, but I kept on going to this church just to be near her sometimes.

Then another girl became interested in me, so I began taking her home, but never treated her as more than just as a friend.

Now I have made up with the first girl, and I am [illegible] as I am [illegible] except [illegible] but for her I don't want her [illegible] as I [illegible] her.

Ailing Heart Menace Is Neglect

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

IT is upsetting for one to be told he has heart disease. It has always been considered a serious ailment.

Statistics continue to point to it as the first and chief cause of death.

Assuming that statement as a [illegible] requires an explanation. [illegible] heart disease should [illegible] feared as it is.

As a matter of fact most persons who die [illegible] of heart disease never [illegible] the dreaded [illegible]. [illegible] they often [illegible] be relieved [illegible] free from [illegible] and [illegible] a normal [illegible]. [illegible] for [illegible] because [illegible]

Vividly Told Bible Tales

THE story-telling hour. What a delight to give Jock the true stories he loves best—to tell in simple, vivid language the great deeds of David, Saul and Moses.

Leaving the people to [illegible] of the Philistines, "King Saul was in one of his terrible black fits [illegible] hidden alone in his tent."

AUSTEN LAKE

Frick on Visit; Sly Sonja; Foxx's "X"; Proxy War, Etc.

PRESIDENT FORD FRICK OF THE NATIONAL League will address the University Club tonight. But, shillings to cupcakes, he will avoid any comment on Bill Terry's tactless reopening of his feud with the newspaper boys, or the subject of J. Dizzy Dean's latest salary quibble with the Cardinals. What Frick did do recently, much to the outrage of the American League, was to predict a runaway race for the Yankees and their clinching of the pennant by July. The A. L. magnates adjured him to mind his own knitting . . .

AUSTEN LAKE

Announcement by the New York Giants that their players will gather in Hot Springs for preliminary boiling before proceeding to Baton Rouge, La., for regular Spring training, recalls that Cap Hanson invented the Spring conditioning trip at the Ozark Spa 52 years ago.

Crowther's Bow-Out

HOW MUCH OF HARVARD'S MAGNIFICENT football line last Autumn was creditable to Rae Crowther and how much to Dick Harlow is for next October to show. Harvard's victory over Yale was primarily a line victory. Now, in passing to Yale, Crowther goes, not because of dissatisfaction with the Cambridge post, but because Penn gave him a smart salary hoist and because he lives in Ardmore, a Philadelphia suburb, and is engaged to marry a hometown girl . . .

The thwarted invention of Kidnaper Peter Anders recently bagged by the G-men, to snatch Dizzy Dean for ransom last summer, suggests that before he had hell Dizzy a few friends have been willing to pay Branch Rickey to take Mr. Ear Anders off his hands. Also is this the first kidnap scare (so far as my records reveal) since Rhem, the chronic wrestler who put it over the Cardinals, claimed to have been grabbed by a New York cutthroat in 1932, forced to ride out in the country and to drink quarts of nasty intoxicants? So far as I've been able to explain his overnight absence and the fact that he was not at Sally's next morning on the sidewalk before the Cardinals' hotel . . .

Why Foxx Signed So Briskly

REASON WHY JIMMY FOXX GRABBED TOM YAWKEY'S proffered fountain pen the other evening and squiggled his signature at the foot of his 1938 Red Sox contract is because the terms therein were identical with the terms of last season, i. e. $20,000. And well might Mr. Twin-X consider himself generously dealt with after paddling for the low average of .285. Such pay calls for an average 100 points higher . . .

A battle of proxies is taking place between Walter O'Hara and [illegible] faction at Narragansett race track. Object [illegible] O'Hara's ouster comes up. Puzzle, Recession, Bowser

AT THE RISK OF BEING ACCUSED of presumptuous nose poking, this column wonders how Glenn Cunningham, making his annual appearance in Saturday night's Boston K. of C. games, can afford the luxury of so many man-hours in training, travelling and competing now that he is married and attending the N. Y. U. Phys. Ed. school. Amateur ways are sometimes wondrous . . .

Or we'd never suspect there is a recession in the economic [illegible] of the country going on from the way sport crowds are streaming down the front of the Boston Garden to get in. Saturday's [illegible] was a capacity house, ditto Tuesday night's Hockey game, and there is barely standing room left for Sonja Henie's four-day scooting carnival next week. College basketball is [illegible] all local attendance records for that sport and the Braves' total admission figures exceed anything [illegible] 1928 . . .

Paul Bowser, mat impresario, plans to bid high for the Hambletonian harness classic next year. Since 1930 the cornstassel derby has been run at Goshen, N. Y., which town, rumour says, has put up only $3500 for the prize. Bowser, devoted harness-horseman, would go higher to bring it to Boston.

Casey Entitled To Title Mat Bout | Thesz Likely To Avoid Celt

By JACK CONWAY

IT WAS NATURAL for big Steve Casey of Ireland to ask for the right to battle Louis Thesz, 22-year-old Hungarian from St. Louis, for the world's heavyweight wrestling championship at the Garden on February 11.

Mr. Boston

Casey has been demanding championship battles with the various title holders since he arrived in the United States a year ago last Fall. To date Casey has failed to receive consideration from Yvon Robert, Everett Marshall and other heavyweight stars.

If you have seen Casey wrestle, you can realize why he has not got to first base in his efforts to battle for the title. He is the most powerful athlete in the world, and has won more than 300 mat contests. He has never met with defeat.

Dan O'Mahony, former world's champion, is one of the few headliners who would agree to meet Casey. Danno, while a vastly improved wrestler over the form he showed when he first came to the United States, lost to Casey. This tussle was held at Fenway Park last Summer, and furnished a stirring engagement.

If permitted to make his own decision, the youthful Louis Thesz would probably agree to meet Casey. Thesz, six feet one and a half inches tall and weighing 225 pounds, is not afraid of any man in the world. He is the most natural athlete I have seen in recent years. He would probably become as great a heavyweight boxer as a wrestler if he were to take up punch tossing.

With proper training for two years, Thesz would knock out Joe Louis in three or four rounds. Thesz has amazing speed. He is the fastest big man I have ever seen in action. Louis, Schmeling, Braddock, Robert, George and other heavyweight boxers and wrestlers look slow in comparison.

UNLESS HE SUFFERS a relapse, Manager Art Ross will accompany the Bruins on their week-end jaunt to Montreal and Detroit.

"I see where the boys wrote that the Bruins defeat was the worst the Maple Leafs ever encountered. Such a statement is slightly warped.

"I recall one night in Montreal some years ago, who the rules allowed referees to fill penalty boxes to capacity, especially with visiting players. Les Canadiens beat us 10 to 1. For some minutes in that game we had only two men on the ice a goalie and a forward.

Sea King Enters Canine Revue At Statler

Newfoundland Has Won 'Best' Award At 42 Shows

Mrs. Davison D. Power, secretary of the Newfoundland Club of America, and owner of the famous Waseeka Kennels in Ashland, is planning exhibits representative of the Province of Newfoundland, Canada, and also Wales at the "Dogs of All Nations Revue" next Wednesday afternoon in the Imperial Ball Room, Hotel Statler.

Champion Waseeka's Sea King, America's greatest living prize-winner of the Newfoundland breed, will demonstrate the working side of a canine's aristocrat's life.

He will wear an authentic dog harness, Mrs. Power acquired in Canada, and will draw a cart containing a small child passenger.

WELSH EXHIBIT

Best of breed at 42 shows, Sea King has been seen working, also, at thirteen shows, and in 1933 started the wag world by capturing the highest honor of "Best in the show" at the Ladies' Dog Club event, then held in Brookline.

He has been an important factor in making possible Mrs. Power's record of nine consecutive Eastern Dog Club triumphs, as well as eight Westminster wins in a row.

As for the Welsh exhibit, this will be staged by either Mrs. Power or her mother, Mrs. Homer Loring. But in any event, a Pembroke Welsh Corgi, Chipperno Boy of Sealy, will be in the cosmopolitan canine parade.

This little shepherd dog actually from Pembrokeshire, was the rosette winner for best of breed at last year's Eastern shows, and has been Mrs. Power's biggest Corgi winner, excepting only the international champion Rattle.

Rattle happens to be the sister of the Corgi, which is the favorite pet of Princess Elizabeth and frequently photographed with England's Royal Family.

TRAINING 18 DOGS

Mrs. Power is now training 18 of her dogs, including a dozen Newfoundlands, for the Westminster show in New York next month, and expects to have as many or more in the Eastern exhibition, Feb. 21 and 22, at Mechanics Building.

Mrs. Power will have some real competition in the Welsh class, as if Bing Crosby, famous crooner, decides to enter he Newfoundlands.

He is keeping strictly at home with Waseeka's Black Prince and Waseeka's Cleo, both raised by Mrs. Power.

'Come On! 50-50 There Pal'

Extra! Gabler Has Nothing to Say

By JOE CASHMAN

The boys at the Hive were speechless today as Stanley Andrews, young backstop from Lynn, who hopes to see considerable service receiving Gabler and the other Casey Stengel's pitchers this season. Green as a pea when he went South with the Allston aggregation last Spring, the Shoe City catcher improved by leaps and bounds as a farmer at Zanesville and he returns to the varsity rated as a rookie who has better than an even chance of sticking this time.

When General Manager Eddie Mahan returned to his Fenway Park desk after attending the Philadelphia writers' dinner and found the signed contract of Leo Nonenkamp, promising young outfielder from Little Rock, Leo writing from St. Louis, thanked the Sox management for the opportunity he had long waited for" and expressed confidence he would make the grade.

A 27-year-old rookie who once had a trial with the Pirates, Nonenkamp has the stuff to worry all of the other Cronin gardeners if his Southern League record of last year can be taken as a criterion.

The last mid-week mail at the Red Sox Hive furnished the signed contracts of Hank Maggert, infield property from Houston, Tex., and Edgar Mohler, former University of Pennsylvania first-baker, who was purchased from the O'Dea club of the Canadian-American League.

Maggert was once Red Sox property. The St. Louis Cardinals acquired title to him in the deal which sent Buster Mills from Rochester to the Sox.

The young man, according to Billy Evans, is a great natural hitter. His stick averages tend to confirm Evans' opinion. He hit .295 in Danville, Penn., he stepped into the fast Texas League and belted the agate at a .345 clip.

He promises to be a fixture in the Hose lineup, either at second or third base, if he can show a slight defensive improvement.

Edgar Mohler, in all probability, needs further minor league experience before he'll be ready for big time, but he's regarded as a youth who can't fail to reach stardom in two or three years.

The most ornate and perhaps the most informative of big league rosters is the folder issued by the New York Giants, National League champions.

Bill Terry will have 31 players in camp when he starts to work trying to mould a machine capable of successfully defending the title that went to the Polo Grounds the past two years.

There are seven New England favorites in the Giants' ranks, including Wally Berger, formerly Braves; Jim Weaver, Bucky Walters, Lynn's "Blondy" Ryan, Pitcher Tom Brennan from Augusta, Me., Pitcher Willie Ruffing, who hails from Green, R. I. and Catcher Jim Sheehan from New Haven.

The Giants will start training very early. The Sultry men will assemble Hot Springs, Ark., on Feb. 17 and the rest of the squad will join the pitchers and catchers at Bradenton, Fla., on Feb. 20.

The Harlem heroes have an exhibition game scheduled with the Philadelphia Athletics at Martin Park, Augusta, Ga., on March 17. The Red Sox fielders are due to check in at Sarasota.

The Terrymen have 21 exhibitions scheduled in all and the Cleve and Indians will furnish the opposition in 16 of these.

The only newcomers to the New York list who come up with brilliant minor league records are Bill Lohrman, a Brooklyn boy, who pitched Baltimore to 20 victories last season, and Leslie Horn, an outfielder who batted .324 for Albany.

The demand for tickets for the Boston baseball writers' dinner at the Parker House next Wednesday night becomes greater every day. Gerry Moore of the Globe, chairman of the ticket committee, reports that reservations may still be made through the sports department of any Boston newspaper but that, from present indications, the house will be sold out by next Sunday.

Irish Amateurs Sail Sunday For U. S.

Another thrill-packed program of amateur bouts will be offered by the Irish American A. A. at the Boston Arena next Monday night, when they offer eight classes in open and novice divisions. The open weights will be 112, 125, 135, 147, 160, 175 pounds and heavyweights, while the tyros will battle at 147 and 160 pounds.

All entries close with Tom Kanaly at the Arena, and boxers intending to box next Monday night are urged to file their signed blanks immediately.

The boxers taking part in Monday night's bouts will be carefully watched by the directors of the South Boston club, for members of the U. S. A. team that will meet Ireland and Canada in the big International Tourney to be staged at the Boston Garden on Monday evening, February 14, under the auspices of the Irish American A. A., has not been determined.

The outstanding amateurs in New England are all anxious to make a place on the International Team, and next Monday night will be a good time for them to show their ability within the roped ring.

The team from Ireland will have Cobh on January 30 and will be in Boston at least a week before the February 14 snow to polish off in their training.

The Canadian team also will come to the Hub early so as to be in the best of shape for the big contests.

O'Mahony Wins As Germaine Balks

Art O'Mahony was declared the winner of the main wrestling bout in Charlie Gordon's mid-week show at the Arena, when after he and Germaine each had won one fall, Germaine refused to come back into the ring and was counted out by the referee.

Germaine had thrown O'Mahony out of the ring and as Art tried to return Germaine got a headlock on him and threw him.

When the referee told Germaine the fall did not count Ted jumped out of the ring and refused to return.

Germaine took the first fall with an alligator clutch in 17 minutes 6 seconds. O'Mahony won the second bout with a double leglock in 6 minutes 28 seconds.

Steele Semara beat Chippero Charlie with a back fall in 12 minutes 36 seconds in the semifinal bout. Other bouts:

Armand Le Dionne defeated Dutch Schmidt, body press, 16m. 6s.; Carmen Carone defeated Bull Durial, three falls, 18m. 15s.; Pat Schaefer and Sandy Mac, Donald, draw, 10m.; Everett Steele and Ike Goldberg, draw, 20m.

Just How Good Is Rollin Home, Anyway?

By the Associated Press

Horsemen are beginning to wonder just how good Rollin Home really is following his easy triumph in the mid-week seven-furlong feature at Hialeah Park. Back of him were such good sprinters as Hal Price Headley's Fraidy Cat, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Finance and Townsend B. Martin's Stubbs.

Rollin Home, a five-year-old son of High Time, racing for Mrs. G. H. Emick of Kansas City, was not even wanted when he raced for $1500 at Tropical Park.

He moved up and scored in a $2500 claiming affair, then finished second in the Hialeah Inaugural Handicap and won a handicap prior to yesterday's smashing triumph.

Last season, Rollin Home won only three of his nine starts for earnings of $2535.

J. E. Widener, head of Hialeah Park, will give three valuable sets of cuff links to the owner, trainer and jockey of the winner of the $20,000 Flamingo Stakes February 26.

Haney Points Out Why It Cannot Bring Recovery

By LEWIS HANEY
(Professor of Economics, New York University)

(Special to the Boston Evening American)

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—Suppose you were in a group of ten laborers who had got together to run a shop or a small factory on a cooperative basis. You would be your own employer.

Suppose, further, that the demand for your product declined and its price had to be reduced.

What would you do?

Would you close down the shop? Or would you take less pay?

Just think that question over. I will lead you to the correct answer to the real question now before us, which is: Should we try to go through this depression without reducing money wages?

Mr. Lewis, head of the CIO, asserts that prices may have to come down, but that wages must stay up. Mr. Roosevelt has said immediately with a similar statement. And many people get the idea that by keeping money wages up we can keep the purchasing power of laborers up. This they think will bring business recovery.

WHAT WOULD HAPPEN?

Now ask yourself what would happen to your own little shop that we are supposing you are running as a cooperative enterprise. Could you continue to pay up during the depression? Where would the money come from?

If your wages are to be maintained, your products will have to sell. But to sell your products at all you have to cut the price. Then you get a smaller income for the business. And that means less pay for you.

Just try to be your own employer. Then you will find that there is no way to beat the game.

There is no way to know what wages can be paid in any business until we find out what prices for products of that business can be sold for.

Next ask yourself why the President makes an exception in the case of the building industry. If 1929 wages crippled it, he can tell us why don't they do it for building labor too?

After all, steel is one of the most important building materials. If maintaining high wages for structural steel workers and the carpenters who drive the wire nails?

IT'S ONE OR THE OTHER

You know that 43 high money wages mean high labor expenses. (2) High labor expenses mean high prices for products. (3) High prices for products mean high living costs. (4) High living costs make your high money wages cost.

There is only one alternative that we can see. Instead of part time or close down, get what good does the high wage rate do you?

Don't forget. This is just as true of a cooperative shop where you are your own boss, as in a big corporation.

LAST YEAR'S SLUMP

If high wages can bring business recovery, why did business slump last year? Was there any wage cutting last Summer before the big slump began? There was not.

Why, even Hoover in 1929 got business men to pay high wages out of current income and out of capital. It prolonged the depression.

Did you ever know us to recover from a depression by paying high wages that both come down? Never in all the history.

Do you want the government to take over control of business? If so you back up the CIO-New Deal moves. Then you will find out what is best. You Rivers will Kennedy said about labor in shipping, don't you? And how did you like Roosevelt's remarks about organized labor and strikes among government employes?

Once let the government force business to pay wages it can't afford, and government will have to take over. Then try to strike, Mr. Laborer.

You'll find yourself in the army.

Moley Says Press Fair With Deal

Brain Truster Finds President Has No Real Complaint to Make

(This is the second of four articles based on an interview with Raymond Moley, former "Brain Truster.")

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
(Copyright, 1938, By International News Service.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (INS)—President Roosevelt has no real complaint against the press of America. Such is the view of Raymond Moley, former close adviser to President Roosevelt, as expressed in an interview today.

"The press generally has been more fair to this administration than any in my memory," said Moley. "That goes for the reporting of news and for the relationship between the administration and the press at Washington conferences.

"The administration can't expect the press to agree with it editorially all the time. For years the administration got nothing but praise.

"I had to take the rap for six months at Washington, and I'm not kicking. The press dealt fairly with me at all times and nobody had to take more criticism than I did."

TALKS FREELY

Moley, now editor of "News-week," talked freely on the nation's problems. He is an intellectual looking man of about 50, tall and well put up. He is slightly bald and his thinning hair is graying. He has a healthy, outdoor appearance. He writes editorials as he works in his editorial sanctum and puffs meditatively on a pipe as he talks. He is quite frank, and does not pull his punches.

Moley expressed the opinion that the recent blasts at business by Secretary of the Interior Ickes and Assistant Attorney General Robert H. Jackson were "very harmful and indefensible."

Making real peace between big business and the administration he regards as the No. 1 step toward industrial recovery. "As long as a state of war exists," he asserted, "there is going to be a state of uncertainty."

Asked if he thought President Roosevelt has a definite policy or is merely playing quarterback and calling signals as he goes along, Moley replied:

"There hasn't been a definite policy for two years. The administration's policies have been opportunistic."

The New Dealers "never had a consistent tax policy," he contended. There have been "continual promises and improvisations."

"This is serious because you do one thing one month and undo it the next," he declared.

SOME CRITICISM

He criticized the action of men like Jackson quitting the income tax case like Alfred P. Sloan, president of General Motors, Inc., and not revealing how much the government took out for the Sloan income for 1917 was $361,211. However, he had to pay a Federal tax of approximately $331,-514 and a state tax of $44,654, leaving him a net of $165,241.

Moley said Jackson did this to make Sloan look bad, and added that big business men "are through this subterfuge."

Moley contended that if the government is going to publish the salaries of big business men, it should also publish the amount of tax it takes out of such incomes.

"Suppose Jake Ruppert, owner of the New York Yankees, said he would pay Joe DiMaggio $50,-000 a year, with a provision in the contract that he would charge Joe $10,000 for uniforms and that Joe couldn't play without a uniform," said Moley. "Would it be fair for him to publish that Joe was earning $50,000 a year when the player actually would be getting $20,000?"

Moley was asked to comment on Communistic and Nazi propaganda in the United States and his answer was:

"I don't believe that it is very serious. I am not worried about it. All we have to do to deal with this matter is to keep freedom of the press and freedom of speech."

Washington's Economics Are Badly Mixed Up

Latest Statements From Roosevelt Scrutinized

By B. C. FORBES

President Roosevelt has reason to pray to be saved from his friends. They are leading him—or would-be friends are leading the most contradictory statements and advocating the most contradictory economic policies.

Take these latest statements from the written-out lecture to business men:

"Those in charge of a well-managed and solvent industry should no more consider casting the burden of a temporary business recession upon their workers than upon their bondholders. To cast such burden on the bondholders is financial bankruptcy. To cast such burden on the workers is not only moral bankruptcy but the bankruptcy of sound business judgment.

"If industries reduce wages this winter and spring they will be deliberately encouraging the withholding of buying—they will be fostering a downward spiral, and they will make it necessary for their government to consider other means of creating purchasing power."

NOBLE WORDS

Noble words, very noble words most noble words.

But how do they square with the administration's own policies?

During the long depression industry, in order to keep things going, drew upon its reserves to the extent of no less than $24,700,000,000.

Since then, however, what has happened?

The government passed a law penalizing any and every employing business enterprise that attempts to retain any considerable part of its net earnings as reserve to meet future emergencies.

In other words, here is what Washington now says:

"You built up reserves in good times and paid a large part of them out to cope with bad times, especially to take care of wage earners.

"We have clamped down on reducing earnings to enable you to act similarly in future.

"But we now command you to reduce reserves and at the same time to refrain from fixing wages in line with your reduced prices.

"You must bear the losses. Where are you to get the money to do so is none of our concern. We have forbidden you to accumulate adequate reserves for this or any other purpose."

ILLOGICAL, FANTASTIC

Could any stand be more illogical, fantastic?

Yet after all how much hurt have statesmanship can be expected from those now in command of Washington?

How many of them achieved outstanding success in the realm of business from President Roosevelt down?

Nevertheless political novices presume to instruct experienced business men on how to conduct business.

They don't stop to explain how any business concern, penalized if it attempts to accumulate reserves can make headway against the ever-increasing working force during business ups and downs, and at the same time cut prices and pay higher wages.

Is it any wonder that Britain whose government is largely controlled by men who have had years in business, is more prosperous than we are—and dumfounded by Washington's incredible activities?

Words fill no pay envelopes.

Remember that.—B. C. Forbes.

BUSINESS BOSTON AMERICAN FINANCE
NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER
22 BOSTON, THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1938

Shipyard's Outlook Is Described

Joseph P. Kennedy Sees 4 to 5 Years of Real Prosperity

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Passage of two measures now before Congress will mean four or five years of prosperity for American shipyards. The authority for such a statement is none other than Joseph P. Kennedy, maritime commission chairman. And it is mighty good news for a long neglected industry which can rightly feel that the words of such a respected administration adviser need not be taken with a grain of salt.

The two measures which Mr. Kennedy informed Senate Labor and Commerce Committee members would bring a new and brighter day for shipyards are: First, the pending Copeland bill to amend the Merchant Marine Act and, second, the Vinson bill for appropriating legislation. The first calls for virtually doubling the American merchant marine and is in itself ambitious enough to keep every yard in the country busy for the next three or four years. The Navy program calling for major as well as minor first additions to the fleet's supply annually for the next five or six years.

In shape the first allows for about 65 additional vessels to turn from the building ways in the next five years. Likely to result from the President's coming message on defense. There is no telling exactly the number of outside industries that would be aided but we have Mr. Kennedy's word for it that they would be necessary to rehabilitate long-idled Pacific coast shipyards if both measures are to be fully effectuated be given a needed and interrupted boost.

RESERVE REPORT

The board of governors of the Federal Reserve System released today their report on general business and financial conditions in the United States for December and the first three weeks of January. Chief interest centered around the comparison of the two periods covered. Industrial output declined further in December and the preliminary figures for the January period covered showed little change. This is a disappointment to many who had anticipated a turn for the better early in the new year. However, the action of the market certainly has discounted the worst for high hopes if, in fact, it has not definitely pointed to an appreciation of actual, though unreported, conditions.

• • •

It is an easy thing to permit disappointing statistics to create an unduly pessimistic attitude and at such times it is necessary to be on guard on such a happening. The best antidote is a study of investment results as they are shown on many occasions in recent weeks the time has not come when investments can be considered cheap enough to warrant broad scale replacement buying. But it is not too far off it is now possible to see, and probably only two months away, for producers goods.

NEW START NEEDED

The stock market will have to start all over again in its attempt to stage a good rally on the upside. Whatever degree of strength appears in the sessions immediately ahead will undoubtedly have to contend with the ghost of strength lings from disgusted longs and short sellers. For our part we are wondering if the whole list has not had all the recovery it is going to have before making a final plunge to the downside. Consequently, advice is offered to those still holding big positions to lighten up on strength, even though it is of only moderate proportions.

• • •

The real turnoff on the market's intentions can not come, of course, until now off November 24 low is broken by industrials. But a decisive reacting of the reaction low of December 28 to the same group will point a most unpleasant picture in this writer's opinion and one he would not care to be holding much if any, position, particularly if it is of a speculative nature.

Wheat, Sought by Portugal, Halted

LONDON, Jan. 27 (AP)—Negotiations over the Portuguese government for purchase of about 75,000 tons of Argentine United States and Australian wheat in the London market were halted temporarily today when difficulty was encountered in overcoming a number of technical points.

It was understood in the grain trade that the matter would be reconsidered tomorrow.

Physician There for 10 Years Graduated From Harvard

Funeral services for Dr. Malcolm M. Restall, 59, Marblehead physician for 10 years, will be held tomorrow at the Church of the Holy Name, Episcopal, at Marblehead.

He died at his home, 66 Pleasant street, Marblehead, after a short illness.

Dr. Restall was born in Everett and attended Roxbury Latin School. He graduated from Harvard in 1902 and four years later won his medical degree at Harvard Medical School.

After serving an internship at Albany Hospital, New York, he came here. He was on the staff of the Mary Alley and Salem Hospitals.

WILLIAM A. HANLEY

NEWPORT, R. I., Jan. 27—William A. Hanley, 61, a member of the board of aldermen for the last 25 years, today was dead at his home following a sudden illness.

Born in Auckland, New Zealand, she came to Brockton when a child. She was a charter member and a past president of the Brockton Woman's Club and organized the Brockton Girl Scouts.

She leaves two sons, Merle E. Gardner and Donald W. Gardner, the latter a former star football star at Dartmouth College, and two daughters, Mrs. Nellis Wells with whom she lived, and Mrs. Arlene Dunbar of Brighton.

PRIESTLEY MORRISON

NEW YORK, Jan. 27—Priestley Morrison, 66, a veteran of 44 years as actor and stage director, was dead today at his home in Kew Gardens, L. I.

John I. Taylor, 63, Funeral Plans Arranged

Son of Globe Founder, Ex-Sox Owner, Died After Brief Illness

Funeral plans were being arranged today for John I. Taylor, 63, of Dedham, son of General Charles H. Taylor, founder of the Boston Globe, following his death in the Massachusetts Memorial Hospitals after a brief illness.

A well-known figure in sports circles for many years, Taylor was owner of the Boston Red Sox from 1903 through 1911. Though he was an accomplished newspaperman, joining the business "from the ground up," he was best known for his interest in all forms of sports in which he took part in Boston on January 14, 1875. He entered the employ of the Globe after his graduation from high school and gained experience in the editorial and advertising departments before leaving the paper.

At the age of 29 he became president of the Red Sox, a position he maintained through the season of 1911. In 1904 he piloted the team in the American League pennant, but the New York Giants refused to engage in a series for the championship of both leagues. It was this refusal which led to the formation of the "National Commission," which handled the baseball World until 16 years later, when Judge Kenesaw Landis was named "Baseball Commissioner."

During his tenure of office with the Red Sox Taylor bought almost all of the ball players and increased the attendance of the ball team greatly.

He is survived by four children, Mrs. Donald Bemis Scully of Orchard Park, N. Y., Nan Neal and John I. Jr. of Dedham, and Henry Bailey Little, 2d, of Port Angeles, Wash., and his wife, the former Cornelia R. Van Ness of San Francisco.

Schools, Church Get $11,000 in Bequests

The will of Mrs. Julia B. Gilmore of Brookline, on file today, leaves public bequests of $11,000, the largest $5000 to Norfolk Agricultural School in Dover-Foxcroft, Me. To the Congregational Church in the same town is left $2000. To Northfield Seminary of Washland, Wis., $2000 and to Bradford Academy of Bradford $1000. The remainder of the estate goes to four nieces and a nephew.

Ship's 'Hammer Ghost' Recalled by Captain Here

By ROBERT L. GREEN

How the "Ghost of the River Plate" nearly made a British freighter operating between Boston and the South American port more than a quarter of a century ago, to the laughing stock of the British merchant marine, was retold recently with relish by a group of old freighter former officers, now a staff captain of a large transatlantic liner.

"It was on a blistering hot day, nearly 30 years ago" continued the captain, "when we dropped anchor and steamed out of the sluggish river and into the sea bound for Boston and ridicule that was to ride with us for a long time.

MEN FRIGHTENED

"We weren't two days at sea when I noticed the men gathered in scared clumps and talked in frightened whispers.

"A short time after a delegation visited the captain and asked that the ship be examined because there were mysterious hammerings going on during the night. The officers, for the sake of crew morale, pooh-poohed this talk of mystery.

"But the men were not appeased.

SEARCH ORDERED

"Finally to maintain discipline the officers were forced to order a search.

"As was expected, nothing was discovered, but this served to make matters worse instead of better.

"The cockney fairly gloated in his fear. He could be heard to mutter, 'Hits a bleeding ghost we got picked hup his Sout Hamerica. A Sout Hamerican ghost ats wots doin the 'ammering.

"One of the officers went to the focsle and listened with the crew the night following the search, and sure enough he heard the hammering.

"He came back to the officers' quarters and though he attempted to scoff, he, too, was impressed.

CREW NERVOUS

"Finally we arrived in Boston with half the crew in such a nervous state as to refuse afternoon tea. A newspaper reporter came aboard and got a vivid account of the ghost story.

"For years afterward that story haunted the ship as the 'ghost' never did. Everywhere we went persons would make special trips to the dock to inquire about the ghost.

"Of course nobody believes in ghosts but we were never able to explain the hammering. Maybe the ship was really haunted."

The captain smiled—and crossed his fingers.

NEW ENGLAND'S GREATEST EVENING NEWSPAPER

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

THURSDAY, JANUARY 27, 1938

Pleasant words are as an honeycomb, sweet to the soul, and health to the bones.—Proverbs XVI., 24.

The text for today is suggested by the Rev. James T. Rider, Clarendon Street Baptist Church, Boston. The next text will be suggested by Dean Philemon Sturges, Cathedral Church of St. Paul, Boston.

The Editor Says:

"An American institution of learning is no place for the dissemination of subversive propaganda. It is rather the place where the country expects its best American citizens to be moulded."—Report of Committee on American Citizenship to the New York State Bar Association.

THIS sound American principle, with which no patriotic mind can disagree, is not stated as a mere passing observation upon what is TRUE.

It has FOUND ALIEN-MINDED AGITATORS in American institutions of learning teaching "subversive doctrines and ideologies wholly antagonistic to fundamental American concepts."

Its timely and inevitable conclusion is that:

"Great harm is being done in some of our large institutions of learning by the cynical criticism of our American institutions by neophytes in professional robes."

FACING FACTS.

—the committee proposes a program of education in Americanism to UPROOT this "poisoning of the minds of our people."

It finds a need for AMERICAN PROPAGANDA, not in the schools alone but among the people at large, because:

"There is a tendency today to close our eyes to the spread among our people of malicious propaganda.

"This attitude is indulged in by many of our most respected and most patriotic citizens, who mean well, but who SHOULD KNOW BETTER.

"They unwittingly aid the dissemination of subversive influences by their apathetic attitude and their consequent failure to probe into this MALIGNANT GROWTH.

"We refer specifically to the GROWTH AND SPREAD OF COMMUNISM in our large cities, which we consider an imminent danger to the structure of our form of government."

THE UNDERMINING

—of American institutions insidiously attempted in the schools is, the committee finds, proceeding under the cover of the labor movement where:

"These forces bend their efforts not to ameliorate the conditions of the American worker within the framework of our institutions, but to DESTROY OUR AMERICAN SYSTEM by creating dissatisfaction, discontent and disillusionment."

This alert committee has conducted an impressive analysis of the METHODS of subversion.

It has also UNMASKED the most persistent AGENTS OF SUBVERSION.

"The propaganda of Communism," it reports, "is cleverly and subtly administered to our people, so that they are unintentionally seduced by it.

"In our large centers, we have organizations whose titles would lead us to believe that they espouse peace and democratic ideals, but which in reality DOLE OUT THE INSIDIOUS VENOM OF COMMUNISTIC ERROR to an unsuspecting citizenry and PARTICULARLY TO OUR YOUTH."

The report of this committee is a REVELATION of facts and dangers.

America must AWAKEN TO THESE FACTS AND DANGERS, and correct them through EDUCATIONAL AMERICANISM, as the committee proposes.

LET US ALL DANCE

"Support of the celebration of the President's birthday by every man, woman and child in this nation is needed to fight infantile paralysis."—Admiral Cary T. Grayson, Chairman of the American Red Cross.

Thousands will attend the great ball celebrating the President's natal day tomorrow night at Boston Garden, and other thousands will attend other balls Saturday night in various New England cities and throughout the nation.

It is an outstanding occasion, worthy of universal endorsement and support. Every dancer will have the satisfaction of knowing that his dancing will make it possible for some infantile paralysis sufferer to walk.

This manner of observing the President's birthday dramatizes the successful fight America is making to control one of its most dreaded diseases.

All the proceeds are used three ways: To support further scientific research, to provide first aid in stricken areas, and to equip doctors and parents with means of preventing the tragic after-effects of the malady.

Our plea is GO TO A BIRTHDAY BALL. HONOR THE PRESIDENT AND AT THE SAME TIME ASSIST IN THE RESTORATION OF HEALTHY LIVES.

MR. CAHILL'S VIEW

"The sales tax is unjust to the poor householder who is forced to make a number of small purchases in order to make both ends meet."—Speaker of the House Horace T. Cahill.

Representative Cahill's statement is wholly in accord with facts: the proposed Massachusetts sales tax is nothing more than a political scheme to gouge the poor. No amount of oratory or statistics can make it anything else.

We are confident that Mr. Cahill's opinion reflects the views of scores of legislators who will oppose this and other attempts to impose additional burdens on the working people of this State.

Pursuing Our Planet

By Nelson Harding

It is an axiom of astrophysics that a planet cannot escape from its satellite.

And, as Mr. Harding suggests, the moon is not the only satellite that pursues our Earth. His cartoon shows a satellite known to all.

Many times advancing civilization has tried to rid itself of war.

But war continues its course—and sometime catches up.

The only thing a rich nation on this Earth can do about war is to be prepared against it.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 27.

"BULLS," as mistakes are dubbed in the news rooms, are the despair of all who live by the pen. Even that most meticulous of writing grammarians, F. P. A., when he was columning, tripped several times on the identical mistakes he jeeringly plucked from works of his fellows.

A "bull" will sometimes go through six or seven expert hands after it leaves a writer and not be noticed until, like a lighthouse in a mist, it suddenly looms on the printed page. In a recent column I wrote about Bill Corum there were three stark errors.

Errors of construction so flagrant a schoolboy would catch them at a glance. Yet they not only escaped me as well as more expert editorial eyes but most of the copy reading sharpshooters on newspapers. Too, every writer has special stumblers constantly to bedevil him.

A number of writers employ part time services of professors in English to study their manuscript and some, such for instance as Ernest Hemingway, do not give a hoot. Edith Wharton is reputed to have turned in the most grammatically air-tight manuscript of any modern.

We had an erudite editor on a midwest daily who grew increasingly agitated over the butcheries of English in our paper. He cautioned us several times at staff meetings and then one day after a flock of bungles showed up in the noon edition wrote a scathing bulletin to be pasted up at once—promising to sack the entire copy crew if such derelictions happened again. In his 300 word philippic were four terrible "bulls," which were, apprehensively enough, ringed in red by one of the guilty and gleeful rascals.

An embarrassing moment on the copy desk was during a Taft campaign when I wrote an 8-column Page 1 streamer: "Taft Election Forecasted!" I was utterly ignorant that "Forecast" was correct, but the bawling out I received before the entire staff ten minutes after the edition was out impressed it vividly on my memory.

Out in Cincinnati, by the way, Eddie Steinborn has been made managing editor of the Taft newspaper, The Times Star. Steinborn is a refutation of the old shop slogan that the faithful employe who sticks to one newspaper winds up a putterer on the exchange desk. He began his journalizing as a cub on his paper more than 40 years ago and after occupying the top reportorial assignments became successively assistant city editor, city editor, assistant managing editor and managing editor.

Newspapermen who have weathered such storms usually and deservedly become pillars of wisdom in their communities and there isn't a job in New York, Paris or London that would attract them.

Classy toggery shops are featuring window displays of the Inverness cape, lined both in white satin and purple. I saw the swirl of two leaving limousines at the curb of Sherry's recently and Cholly Knickerbocker listed several, including Mona Beebe squiring Libby Holman, at the opera opening.

Dudley Field Malone, before taking the veil, used to be an Inverness boy.

I believe in every man, down deep, lingers an urge to swagger forth in an Inverness at least once, even though he may not be particularly style conscious. The Inverness and the monocle somehow symbolize the unattainable in fashion dictums.

Thingumbobs: Charles Boyer's favorite breakfast dish is a half grape fruit sprinkled with brown sugar and baked . . . Rockwell Kent buys $5 neckties for his friends and 50 centers for himself . . . H. I. Phillips, the paragrapher, likes to write his column under a palm tree in the Florida moonlight, the lucky stiff . . . Bob Brinkerhoff eats 5 o'clock dinners so he can get at his pipe earlier.

An not so old friend was in despair today. Along a reach of Central Park a pair of motorists yelled, "Hey, Pappy, which way to Holland Tunnel?" That "Pappy" has kept him before the mirror ever since.

That's That

By Bruce Gustin

Senator Reynolds of North Carolina proposes the deportation of aliens who advocate subversive principles. He would make it a criminal offense for aliens to advocate racial or religious discrimination in the United States. Those are sensible ideas. The advocacy of religious or racial discrimination should not be tolerated from anyone.

Suggesting changes in the American form of government is the exclusive prerogative of American citizens. Any American who tried to promote a change of government in any foreign land would be lucky to get off with deportation. He probably would be shot.

Japan is talking now about destroying the present Chinese government and setting up a new regime, under Japanese dictation, as has been done in Manchukuo. She probably has had that in mind all along. But Japanese leaders will find the conquest of China is a simple matter compared with keeping China conquered.

Anyone who reads the story of THE LONG MARCH," as told by Edgar Snow, chief correspondent for the London Daily Herald in the Far East, in "RED STAR OVER CHINA," will get a new idea of the endurance and fighting qualities of the Chinese people.

On this "long march," a Chinese Communist army moved from Southern China into Northwestern China, traveling more than 6000 miles in 368 days. It crossed 24 rivers and 18 mountain ranges, had a skirmish almost every day, spent 15 days in major pitched battles.

This march, all of it on foot, stands as one of the most incredible feats in military history and one which has not been surpassed for centuries. The spirit which made it possible is not going to be easy to stamp out and that spirit is largely anti-Japanese.

Human Side of the News

By Edwin C. Hill

A FEW DAYS ago I brought to the Human Side of the News that interesting chap, Captain Achmed Abdullah, because the captain is just completing a new novel, which, if I know anything about him, should be a humdinger.

The captain himself, Prince Nadir Khan Durani, has seen a bit of everything and been around with odd lots, swinging from London's Mayfair to the Roof of the World; fighting and spying, seeing one of his best friends killed in a duel over a worthless woman and losing his shirt at poker to the late King of Montenegro.

But to get the real flavor of Captain Achmed Abdullah, you should hear him tell about his grandmother and of her famous visit to London which almost disrupted the British Empire. That is the story I promised you the other day.

Grandmother was the wife of Prince Nadir Khan, the Afghan Emir's brother, and very important to the British government as ruler of the buffer state between Russia and India. The captain's grandmother lived, of course, in Kabul, the capital of Afghanistan, and was a most important person, ruling everybody in sight with a sudden hand and a blistering tongue.

When she set forth on her famous visit to London it was an expedition, no less. There were scores of servants and retainers, huge quantities of Afghan food, including live animals to be slaughtered and eaten; pet cats and birds, boxes and trunks and rolls of bedding and huge water-pipes or hookahs, so that the redoubtable old Princess could smoke her favorite tobacco in her accustomed manner. She weighed less than a hundred pounds, this old matriarch, and her personal maid was an ancient, gnarled, gnome-like creature named Guldar Burrag, which means "Rose in the Bud."

All the way from Kabul to London, six thousand miles or so, the expedition was an uproar. And finally it wound up at the Savoy Hotel, where the Princess established herself and held court, not in silks and satins, but in a red flannel wrapper and smoking a large, gurgling water-pipe.

Young women reporters who came to interview the Princess fled in terror for she asked them questions which blanched their maiden cheeks. "Why are your feet so large?"..."Is you get drunk?"..."Why have you such a queer shape?" . . . "Have you ever had a baby?" Brutal catechisms which perfectly delighted the old sinner.

When her hotel bill was presented, and it was tremendous, because she occupied nearly a whole floor of the Savoy, she refused to pay a shilling and, of course, the long-suffering British government had to settle up for political reasons.

But the climax came when Captain Abdullah learned one night that the management of the Savoy had been telephoning all over London for him. He went in haste to the hotel to find the place in an uproar. A family of perfectly outraged Americans, who had rented rooms on the same floor honored by the old Princess from Kabul, were storming about in futile rage.

They had gone out to the theater, and when they returned to the hotel they found their way barred by the redoubtable old lady's four male retainers, huge ruffians, all whiskers, swords, turbans and Central Asian local color.

Ruffians they were, as the captain knew them to be, crooked-mouthed, brawny of thighs and ankles, braggart in their speech, blood tainting their hands and their very souls. Afghans all Afghans, but faultlessly loyal to their old mistress. They had come to Europe to protect her, and protect her they would against all the unbelievers in London.

The captain got the trouble straightened out finally, but the old lady's guards sneered at him thereafter.

The Political Parade

By George Rothwell Brown

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27.

A LTERATION of the depression psychology is not depending upon Mr. Roosevelt's White House conference on the Herbert Hoover plan of 1929, which has never worked, but upon the final action by the Senate on the pending Tax Revision bill.

It is conceded at the Capitol that the law will be written, not in the House, where the Ways and Means draft will be rubber-stamped, but in the Senate.

There will be a show-down between the Liberal group—that's the way the Conservative Senators now describe themselves, and accurately so—and the "left wing."

If the Liberal-Conservatives can muster enough votes to repeal outright the Corporation Surplus and Capital Gains tax, and eliminate the undistributed profits tax, the bill, it is conceded this will be a real go-ahead signal to industry.

Mr. Roosevelt's conferences with big and little business leaders haven't penetrated to any vital spot. High-pressure salesmanship in the automobile industry is only a minor factor. It bears the same relationship to depression causes that the fly riding on the spoke of the wheel bore to the speed of the vehicle.

The President has indicated that he is working out a plan for business men to "get together among themselves to solve their problems without new legislation," as one version puts it.

This new plan was announced at about the time a jury at Madison was convicting about 30 oil officials, in suits brought against them by the Roosevelt Administration. The jury, in effect, found them guilty of having "got together among themselves to work out their problems."

In view of the oil case convictions, Washington expects no band-wagon rush of business men to "get together."

Business uncertainty also hangs on in Washington in consequence of uncertainty over the kind of farm and labor regimentation Congress finally comes across with.

Business can't know what the future holds until the Wages and Hours Bill is either passed or finally defeated or sidetracked.

The inside on this is that the big drive on this is coming when the Navy and Farm bills are out of the way. House leaders are rushing appropriation bills to completion almost in record-breaking haste.

The President pretty soon will have a clean slate to write on at the south end of the big white marble building.

Senator Ellender, of Louisiana, delivered his record-smashing six-day speech against the Anti-Lynching bill to an audience of vacant Senate chairs.

But he developed a clever technique. If in the midst of his remarks a Senator happened to poke his nose in at a door for a quick look-around, the sawed-off and hammered-down little bull dog of the late Huey Long would quickly drag that Senator's name into his speech by saying:

"As the Senator from Massachusetts, Mr. Walsh, doubtless well knows."

Ellender's speech is sprinkled with these curious side-remarks. In print the speech will appear to have been delivered to a packed Senate, with every Senator following every word.

March of Events

By Benjamin DeCasseres

I WANT to describe a god of music, as I have seen him, to the uncounted millions of persons in America who every Saturday night at 10 o'clock tune in to listen to the symphony orchestra under the magic wand of Arturo Toscanini.

Your ears hear the mighty effects produced by this man, but your eyes cannot see how they are produced. If you did, you would never forget what you have seen for the rest of your lives.

Tall, erect, with a profile that might have been carved by a Phidias, crowned with a wealth of silver-gray hair, conducting the great masters without a note in front of him, he awes us, he lifts us up with him to the high-est pinnacle on which the human soul can stand—the unearthly ecstasies of Beethoven, Schubert, Mozart and Bach.

The music seems to come not from the musicians but OUT OF TOSCANINI HIMSELF.

For an hour and a half everything in his consciousness is wiped out of the heavens and the earth but MUSIC. He IS the music!

Toscanini has accomplished what mystics and fabled lovers alone claim to have accomplished—a complete union of body and soul with the object of their adoration.

"And man shall go into the heavens and he shall walk on the bottom of the seas," said an old Teutonic seer.

They would all seem to be coming to pass—these ancient prophecies.

Professor Auguste Piccard, Belgian aeronautical expert, having explored the stratosphere, now proposes, if he can find some zoological or scientific institution to back him, to go to the bottom of the Pacific ocean, or at least a mere "six or seven miles," he says.

How deep the Pacific is no one knows, but it is quite likely that there are valleys and canyons down there that are fifty miles, maybe a hundred miles, deep.

Some day, so the geologists tell us, these mountain ranges called America, Asia, Europe and Africa will slide back, bit by bit, into the bottom of the ocean, leaving the world a watery waste—until there is another recession of the waters or a series of Titanic sub-oceanic earthquakes.

But don't let that worry you NOW—you've about 100,000,000 years to get ready for that bath.

Speaking of disappearing continents, Dr. W. H. Bradley, of the United States Geological Survey, who has been exploring the Atlantic ocean, tells us there really was an Atlantis.

Others contend that the semi-fabulous Atlantis was really America. Thus it may be that the "invaders of Europe" were really ancient American Indians, who probably shouted as they landed, "WE ARE HERE, ADAM!"
